Spread Out Too Thin
All Drink, Says He Great Chance for Hoover
Cold, Silver, Lead

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

"D[illegible] spread yourself out too [illegible]. Brokers give that advice [illegible] margin is small, real es[illegible] when your mortgage [illegible].

[illegible]'s empire is spread out a little [illegible] with its flag all over the [illegible], as Rudyard Kipling observed [illegible] the heavy bear in the [illegible] the svage dancing naked [illegible].

France, small, compact, concentrated country, with the thinly spread British empire.

Britain lent billions to France in the war. Now Britain is hard up, crushed by high taxes, compelled to give a "dole" to millions of unemployed.

France has a billion dollars, gold, on deposit in the United States.

France, with no unemployed, has imported hundreds of thousands of workers from Italy and elsewhere.

France has the greatest fighting army in the world, three times as big as that of any other nation, and British leaders tell you privately, "We must be polite to France."

She has her race troubles in South Africa.

She wants the biggest navy in the world; she is accustomed to having it. She can't afford it.

Luckily she can make Uncle Sam do whatever she wants. But France says: "I will do as I please."

This dry-wet fight continues. Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of business concerns in New York, says he knows no "leading manufacturer who does not break the dry law."

That seems conclusive. Representative Michener, Republican from Michigan, asked, "How about Henry Ford?"

"I do not know him," replied Murphy. The statesmen all laughed.

Henry Ford is as dry as the inside of Tutankhamen's mummy. It will interest you to know that doctors ordered him to drink red wine, favorite beverage of Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin, but Ford wouldn't do it.

SUGGEST government operation and you are told, "The government doesn't know enough or isn't honest enough."

That would involve only engineering problems.

The financial problem of seeing how much the people can be made to pay for water that the Lord causes to run down hill is simple.

President Hoover understands the engineering part, surely.

What a wonderful chance he has at Muscle Shoals, also at Boulder Dam, to show how wise the people were when they elected a great engineer president of the United States!

CONRAD HUBERT, who changed his name from Horowitz, made many millions, left $6,000,000 to uses [illegible] charities, left $1,000,000 to his brother.

His brother, who sticks to his old-fashioned name, Horowitz, has been a police court interpreter and he says he will now devote his time to Germans and charity.

Why did the rich brother want to be dead to give a million dollars to his mother's other son?

Many of us forget the proverb of Nathan Straus:

"What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness is silver, what you give after death is lead."

That spirit gangsters admire. Also that spirit leads to the electric chair. The sentence those men to death as [illegible] they had premeditated an ordinary murder seems severe.

Sullivan, who was killed, led a rescue. The three convicts killed him. If a guard had killed him, the guard would have been promoted, as a policeman was promoted yesterday for killing eight gangsters.

New York's district attorney is told that agents of the plasterers' union threaten to intimidate builders and [illegible] necessary set fire to apartment houses not built with proper payment of "welfare profit" and in a manner satisfactory to the plasterers.

Such statements are unpleasant. In [illegible] business hire men to kill other [illegible]. That dates from the stone age and should not be accepted.

CONFESSES TO POISONING OF EIGHT PERSONS

Detroit Authorities Capture Suspect Labeled "Murder Maniac"

DESCRIBES OPERATIONS

New Yorker Tells of Desire To Kill, Satisfaction It Gives Him

DETROIT, Feb. 20—James Baker, 25, formerly of New York, labelled by police as a murder-maniac, and wanted in several cities for murder, today confessed, according to authorities, to eight poison slayings in various parts of the world.

Baker was arrested last night as a robbery-suspect in a lonely farmhouse near here where, it was said by police, he had been in hiding for nearly a year.

A pistol with eight notches carved in the butt was found. Each notch represented a murder, it was said.

"I have a periodical desire to poison human beings and in killing them in this manner I derive a certain mental satisfaction," Baker told John D. Watts, assistant prosecutor, to whom he readily confessed everything.

Lists Radio Cities

"When this mania seizes me, I want to kill the nearest person to me," he continued. "This was true in every case except the fellow in New York. In his case I wanted to test the poison—wanted to see if it lost its strength after being exposed to air. I have noted that nearly all of them I gave the same poison died in a similar way," he asserted in the cold tone of a scientist to Watts.

Among his possessions when he was captured was a list of cities now using or contemplating the use of police radio.

When questioned as to his feelings regarding his arrest Baker said:

"Yes, I know I'll burn in New York, but I'm not worrying. It comes to all of us some day."

Unmoved by Fate

Although he is in the shadow of the electric chair in New York for the most notorious of his admitted murders, the athletic ex-sailor and one time chemist's helper was unmoved by his capture.

He is specifically charged with the killing of Henry Gaw, watchman in the Guggenheim Brothers laboratory, New York City, on the evening of Dec. 27, 1928.

Baker said that he was once employed by the Guggenheim laboratory as a chemist's assistant and from this knowledge gained entrance to the building where he overpowered Gaw.

He forced the watchman to drink two cups of coffee in which he had placed poison, but this proved ineffective.

Lists His Victims

He then told of how he placed a bit of poison on the end of the muzzle of his revolver and forced it down Gaw's throat until the watchman lost consciousness.

Here are the poison victims who he has named: Henry Gaw, watchman, in the Guggenheim Brothers Laboratory, New York; — a sailor named Honeyeutt in a Houston, Tex., restaurant, in 1924 — a Hindu in Bombay, India in 1927 — an unidentified man in Hamburg, Germany, in the spring of 1926 — a Filipino in Ilo, P. I., in 1928 — and three shipmates on an oil tanker bound from Bayonne, N. J., to Venzuela in 1927.

GASOLINE PRICES LOWERED HERE

Cuts of from Two to Three Cents a Gallon in Effect Today

Gasoline here was selling from two to three cents a gallon lower than previous prices as a result of a general price reduction by all major companies operating here today.

Nineteen cents for special grades was the highest price recorded at local stations. Some companies are selling their special grades at 18 cents and others at 17 cents. Regular grades were selling generally at 15 cents a gallon.

Japanese Government Is Reported Returned

LONDON, Feb. 20—Early returns in the Japanese general elections indicate that the government has been returned with a small majority, a Central News dispatch from Tokio stated today.

Excellent weather brought out approximately ten million voters. The complete results will not be known until Sunday.

Spring Fever Prevails

But Don't Get Your Straw Hat Out; It's An Old Trick of February

A PREMATURE session of spring got under way here yesterday when the mercury skyrocketed to 65 degrees. Sure signs of spring were in evidence everywhere, but the warm weather, which came a month too soon, is not expected to stay in Marion more than a few days.

Yesterday ranks with the hottest February days on record here although in previous years the mercury has raced to a high mark of 65 degrees in the shortest month of the year.

Last night found the mercury no lower than 42, a safe 10 degrees above the freezing mark. Compared with a year ago, the conditions were very desirable, for on the night of a year ago the mercury was hanging at four degrees below zero.

* * *

YESTERDAY'S warm wave of spring is not considered unusual by Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, local weather observer, who says that thermometer readings above 60 are found frequently in the record for that month in the past.

In Cleveland yesterday was ranked as the fourth warmest February day since the government weather record was started there in 1872.

The advent of warm weather has had its effect on the local market situation, some grocers declared today. Since Monday, egg prices have dropped six cents on the dozen. A four-cent drop came with yesterday's warm wave, and continued heat today saw another two cent reduction.

Fair tonight with increasing cloudiness and not much change in temperature Friday is the official weather forecast released today.

COOPER TO GET TAX REPORT

Opinions of members of the Central Ohio Manufacturers association on tax matters will be relayed to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper's general committee on taxation through a committee of three members named yesterday at a meeting of the association here.

The committee is composed of E. M. Olin, of Mansfield, president of the Central Ohio Manufacturers' association, C. F. Michael, of Bucyrus, a member of the association's board of directors, and A. B. Ladow, of Mansfield.

This committee, according to directions given its members at the meeting yesterday, will determine, through questionnaires, the opinion of Central Ohio manufacturers on tax problems. Information gathered in this manner will be presented to the governor's general committee.

Meeting Follows Luncheon

More than 75 manufacturers from 12 counties attended the meeting, which was held following a luncheon in the ballroom of Hotel Harding.

The tax question and the investigation being made into the operation of the state industrial commission by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce were the topics discussed by the manufacturers.

The tax discussion was led by C. B. King, president of the Ohio Manufacturers' association and a member of the board of directors of the Central Ohio association. King is also a member of the governor's tax committee. C. F. Michael presided over

RUNS AMUCK WHEN GIRL REFUSES HIM

Farm Hand Kills Her Brother, Shoots Her and Her Mother

DEXTER, Minn., Feb. 20—Posses of farmers searched the countryside here today for a farm hand who, when refused the hand of an 18-year-old girl in marriage, whipped out a revolver, shot and killed the girl's 14-year-old brother and wounded his sweetheart and her mother.

Weak from loss of blood from a bullet wound in her shoulder, the girl, Rika Drake, stumbled more than a quarter of a mile to the nearest farm house to summon aid for her mother and brother.

The suitor, a former farm hand employed by the Drake family, shot and killed the girl's brother, Albert, then shot Mrs. Drake twice and Rika once, the wounded girl told authorities.

SNOOK DENIED REPRIEVE BY GOV. COOPER

Sees No Reason Why He Should Act in Case at Present Time

UP TO STATE COURT

Slayer Scheduled To Die in Ohio Penitentiary on Feb. 28

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20—The appeal of Dr. James Howard Snook, confessed and convicted slayer of Theora Hix, his 25-year-old sweetheart-paramour, for a 30-day reprieve, was denied today by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper.

The governor declared there is no reason why he should act in the case now. Cooper pointed out that it has not yet been definitely shown that the Ohio supreme court cannot grant an additional stay of execution for Snook or that the United States supreme court cannot acquire jurisdiction in the case and issue a stay of execution.

The governor received the application for a reprieve on Feb. 15, it became known today, from Snook's counsel.

The attorneys told the governor that, unless he granted a reprieve, Snook would be electrocuted on Feb. 28 in Ohio Penitentiary, the date last set by the Ohio supreme court.

Snook's counsel declared that a reprieve was necessary in order to allow the United States supreme court to conduct a hearing relative to Snook's appeal from the decrees of conviction handed down by the Ohio courts. These attorneys said the U. S. supreme court will be unable to give consideration to Snook's appeal until after Feb. 28.

REORGANIZATION OF POWER GROUP PLAN

Hoover Discusses Legislation Making Commission Full Time Unit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—Reorganization of the federal power commission and its constitution as a full-time commission, comparable to other governmental regularity bodies, was discussed at a breakfast conference today between President Hoover and Senator Couzens, Republican of Michigan, who plans to introduce legislation to this end.

It was the first time since Mr. Hoover entered the White House that he has exhibited an active interest in the affairs of the power commission.

Today's conference followed an expose of the commission's fundamental weaknesses yesterday before the senate interstate commerce committee by William V. King, the commission's chief accountant.

King described the commission as a "part time" body functioning only a few hours a year and confronted on every side with "obstructionist tactics" by the great power interests. The power companies, he said, have "in every way imaginable attempted to prevent application of the commission's rules and regulations."

The commission is powerless to exercise control over the great hydro-electric resouces of the country unless congress furnishes some legislation with teeth in it, King said.

DRIVER KILLED IN PITTSBURGH STRIKE

Taxi Fight Reaches Bloodshed Stage; Patrolman Fires Fatal Shot

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 20—Pittsburgh's Homeless taxi strike reached the bloodshed and fatality stage today with the death of William Dreibhold, 24, former driver of the Yellow Cab Co., who was shot and killed by a motorcycle patrolman last midnight.

Dreibhold was fatally wounded when Patrolman William Harrison, stationed on guard duty in front of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station, whipped out his pistol and fired at an automobile which had tried to run him down.

The wounded man, shot through the head, was taken to a local hospital by his brother, Robert, 25, who was arrested at the hospital and held as a suspicious person.

Dreibhold's death marked the climax of a night of disorder and terror which were especially notable in the vicinity of the Baltimore and Ohio station and the Smithfield street bridge leading into the city across the Monongahela river.

Local Red Cross Forms Corps for Disaster Relief

James F. Prendergast Named Chairman of Organization Group To Serve in Case of Unusual Emergency; Sub-Committees To Be Named

James F. Prendergast was named chairman of the disaster preparedness and relief program sponsored here by the Red Cross, in a meeting Wednesday in the local Red Cross headquarters in the Uhler-Phillips Co. building. James E. Phillips was named vice chairman.

The responsibility for disaster relief is assigned to the Red Cross by its congressional charter, and the present plan of the organization calls for a disaster committee for each of its 3,220 chapters and branches.

To take care of this work, which is deemed necessary in every part of the United States, committees on food, clothing, shelter, medical aid, registration and information, transportation and communication, and finance, are appointed, to appoint in turn sub-committees that will embrace the county.

On Wednesday, March 12, the chairmen appointed yesterday morning will meet to complete the organization of these sub-committees.

Other Committee Heads

Bennett Bindley was named chairman of the committee on food, Harry J. Merchant, chairman of clothing, Mayor L. Don Jones, chairman of shelter, Dr. A. J. Willey, chairman of medical aid, Earl T. Smoyt, chairman of registration and information, L. E. Nehergall, chairman of transportation and communication, with

AP Hookup Is Wide

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, which will begin service of its world-wide news-gathering facilities to The Marion Star next Monday, has contractual relations with the great news agencies of the world whereby it has exclusively the right to the news which they collect. These agencies include:

Canadian Press, which functions in Canada along the lines of AP and collects news not only through its own staff but through the newspapers in its membership.

Reuters, Ltd., the great English news agency which covers the entire British Empire as well as China and the greater part of Africa.

Nippon Shimbun Rengo, The Associated Press of Japan.

There are also nationalized news agencies included in the exchange arrangements. These function in Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Esthonia, Finland, Greece, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Jugoslavia, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

All of these agencies employ many special correspondents in addition to the direct staff of each, so that it may be seen that the statement there is a correspondent in every center of population is not an idle boast.

Four Army Fliers Start Non-Stop Panama Flight

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—Three officers and one non-commissioned officer of the air corps hopped off from Miami, Fla., at 6:10 a. m. today on a projected non-stop flight to Panama, a distance of 1200 miles, it was announced at the war department today. The airplanes are following the eightieth meridian most of the way, which is almost entirely over water.

At the controls are two veteran pilots, Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger, of Hawaiian flight fame, and Lieut. Ennis C. Whitehead, who was co-pilot on the Amundsen airplanes flight during South America several years ago.

ATTENDANT NAMED FOR CITY AIRPORT

Claire Keller Stationed at Landing Field To Give Service to Aviators

For the present, at least, Marion airport will be manned by Claire Keller, 19, of Prospect, licensed pilot and former student of Lieut. H. H. Hunter, former pilot at the port. Keller took his position at the hangar at Marion airport today, and stated he would be on the job to sell gasoline and oil to planes which might stop at the port, and to furnish transportation service to and from the city.

Plans are being made in the office of Service Director D. J. Harlow to fill the ruts on the runways of the port, which have been a hazard since filling work was done on the port last fall. These ruts, caused by the sinking of earth in the tile trenches, will be levelled with cinders.

Meanwhile, the airport committee of city council is expected to grant audition to a number of companies which have previously asked to lease the port. Last year these offers were not considered, as the port was being held open for the Marion Aircraft Corporation, which was expected to take over the port this year.

COLUMBUS MAN KILLED

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20—The 1930 traffic toll continued to mount here today with the death of Michael Jordon, 45, who was fatally injured last night when he stepped into the path of an automobile, which was driven by L. L. Hall, while attempting to cross a downtown street intersection.

HOLD AKRONITE AS OHIO MYSTERY IS SLOWLY UNRAVELED

Father of Child Who Turned Tide in Melvin Horst Disappearance Names Two Others in His Last Confession to Authorities

CONALD IS ABSOLVED OF PART IN CRIME

Motive for Murder of Four-Year-Old Child Said To Be Revenge for Lad's Uncle, Then Marshal of Orrville Village

WOOSTER, Feb. 20—That Charles Hannah, after murdering 4-year-old Melvin Horst, gave the boy's body to Tony La Fatch, alleged Akron bootlegger, and a man whose name he believed to be Charles Nosko—for 25 gallons of liquor—was the sensational highlight of Hannah's signed confession to local authorities, they revealed here today.

Motive for the murder, Hannah said he believed, was La Fatch's revenge for Roy Horst, uncle of Melvin, who was then marshal of Orrville. La Fatch, according to Hannah, wanted the boy killed as a way of "letting Horst know that he wanted him to stop interfering" with his alleged bootleg activities in Orrville. Hannah, however, admitted committing the actual killing himself, at La Fatch's instigation.

Ellas and Arthur Arnold, who are alleged to have been La Fatch's agents in Orrville, were again brought into the case in Hannah's last confession.

La Fatch is under arrest at Akron, where he is being questioned by Summit and Wayne county officials. The authorities have not yet apprehended the man known as Nosko, but his arrest will be sought soon, it is believed.

A second man was arrested at Akron this afternoon by Akron police in connection with the murder mystery.

Said to be Nosko

The man is believed to be Charles Nosko, reputed bootleg liquor ring accomplice of La Fatch and is held for questioning with regard to the slaying of the Horst boy.

Startling revelations may develop from his testimony, police intimated.

The man is believed to be the Charles Tresko, who with La Fatch is accused in the confession of Charles Hannah, of having assisted in the arrangements to dispose of the body of Melvin Horst.

Police declined to make any statement regarding the capture of the man they now have in their custody. They indicated, however, they plan to "make short work of him" through questioning.

After grilling the man for a short time at the Akron police station authorities decided to drive him to Wooster for further questioning. They left shortly after 2 p. m.

Question Him

Police authorities stated they were unable to obtain any definite information from the man, but indicated their belief that he could throw considerable light on the complications surrounding the murder and its mystery.

Police stated they believe the man will prove a valuable source of information regarding the bootleg feud

BOY'S BODY MAY HAVE BEEN THROWN INTO SMALL LAKE

AKRON, Feb. 20—Possibility that one of the small lakes dotting this section of the state may mark the grave of Melvin Horst, 4-year-old victim of a bootleg feud, was advanced here this afternoon as police combed Akron's underworld for one or possibly two other men in connecting with the mystery.

Police expressed the belief that if the Horst child was the victim of a revengeful Akron liquor ring murder plot, in all probability his body was flung to the bottom of one of the lakes in Akron vicinity.

Connection of an Akron liquor ring with the Melvin Horst mystery was revealed today with the arrest of Tony LaFatch, 22-year-old reputed bootleg chieftain. The men now being sought are said to be confederates of LaFatch.

Hannah's Last Story on Slaying of Child

WOOSTER, Feb. 20—The complete statement in which Charles Hannah, confessed the murder of Melvin Horst, follows:

In the morning of the twenty-seventh day of December, 1928, at about 9 o'clock, Earl Conald came to my house and went up to Akron to get a gallon of whisky in his automobile. We went into Akron on Miami st.

We bought one gallon and paid $3 for it. He (Conald) paid $2 and I paid $2. I talked to a fellow out in one room and he went into another room.

I ordered the whisky and he put the whisky in a sack, and we watched for a chance to go. The whisky was placed in Earl Conald's car. We then started for Orrville.

We came to South Main st. off of Miami to the Springfield rd., across to the boulevard, and into Barberton, and to Orrville.

When we got into Orrville, he left me out and he took the whisky in the car up to his garage. I didn't see any more of Earl Conald until that night when he came to my house and asked me to go along up to the garage at about 5:30 or 6 o'clock.

We went up to the garage and when we got up to the garage, we got a drink of whiskey and the boy, Melvin Horst, was brought there by Junior Hannah.

Admits Killing

Q.—Mr. Hannah, now tell us who received the boy and killed him. We want the whole truth of this.

A.—Well, I did. I will own up to the facts. I hit him over the head. Earl Conald was at the front end of the car. When Junior brought him up to the garage, I put my arm around his shoulder and said to him, "Come on, I will take you home." I struck him over the side of the head with a piece of wood and he dropped to the ground and I picked him right up, and put him in a sack which I had carried under my coat and I carried him out and put him in a car which was parked outside and owned by me in the possession of Tony Noresko (LeFatch) and Charles Tresko (Hayley). I could feel his feet kick and quiver and heard him gasping. Tony Noresko is a tall, slim fellow and light-complexioned. Charles Tresko is a short, heavy set fellow. I judge their ages is perhaps around 25 years. These were the men that sold me the liquor that I purchased that day. This car in which I placed Melvin was a coupe with a rumble seat and this boy, Melvin Horst, was put in the bottom of the rumble seat by me.

Q.—Did these Italians that you just mentioned furnish liquor for any other people in Orrville?

A.—I know of three or four places.

GOVERNOR WILL NOT INTERFERE

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20—That Gov. Myers Y. Cooper will not intervene in the Melvin Horst murder case, despite the plea of the slain lad's father, Raymond Horst, and several other citizens of Orrville, was indicated at the governor's office here today.

Apparently the results requested have been obtained locally," Cooper said.

[illegible] ways John Andrew felt [illegible]ned and increasingly alone. [illegible]day on the train, swinging [illegible]steep grades of the Sierras, [illegible]mpted fiercely to find some [illegible]one attacking point—of [illegible]ce him; into it, an in[illegible], the figure of Anne was [illegible]. For all his desperate con[illegible] he was no nearer any plan [illegible].

[illegible] Andrew did not trouble to [illegible]room at the hotel; had [illegible]ght up, and then, attempt[illegible]k pace at variance to his [illegible]o, too, were busy with a [illegible]rtant affairs, walked back [illegible] lobby, and to the street. Where now? He had no [illegible]icerely intended walking the [illegible]t of his legs, postponing [illegible]on of his problem as long [illegible].

[illegible]e paced, walking more slowly [illegible]ld buildings bearing only the name [illegible] the owner-occupants, dealers or [illegible]e stores of machinery, of [illegible]s of tools and electrical equip[illegible]—took more than 30 days; [illegible] this was for him, unless he [illegible] gamble over some small manufacturer who needed money to develop some machine which, in turn, could be sold to a large corporation to be marketed.

Why not an advertisement in one of the newspapers: Willing to invest $5,000 in enterprise guaranteed to become $10,000 within 30 days.

What a horde of leeches that would bring!

Yet possibly out of the hundreds of attempts to grab sucker money, John Andrew wondered if he might not find one man who really had something; some fellow who did not know how to get some one else to promote his undertaking. He even went further with the idea. If the machine, or apparatus, or whatever it was, looked good, he'd play perfectly safe and wire his New York bank for the name of some local bank to do the investigating for him, and make sure that the invention—or whatever it was—did not turn out to be a fraud. With this new caution, he remembered that there were such things as patents; how long would it take to find out if an article were not an infringement on some present machine? Unless, of course, the fellow already had his patent papers. It did not seem such a bad notion to John Andrew. What better one had he?

He reworded, as he walked, the original advertisement, until it became, "Investor"—which sounded very conservative—"will consider"—investing? no, he'd used the sense of that once. "Investor will consider proposition to finance promising invention assuring rapid returns. Not interested in gold mines nor oil stocks." That had a good sound tone. Whistling, John Andrew at last wrote out his advertisement, paid for it, and arranged to have the answers sent to a box at the newspaper office, from which they were to be mailed to his hotel.

"You'll get a million answers, won't you?" the girl at the newspaper office said, as she checked the number of words and told him the amount.

"It'll run high." Kellogg agreed airily. "Must be a good many good ideas running around which only need some promotion to make them blossom into dollars."

"Yes, sir," the girl said. "One of the stenographer's uncles had a machine——"

"Tell him to write me," John Andrew told her kindly. "May be the very thing, eh?"

"Yes, sir," she said. "His name——"

"Wouldn't be sporting to the other fellows if I knew that, would it? First come, first served, and all that sort of thing."

You take an invention, now, John Andrew thought as he walked away; you take it just like real estate and cigars and bath chops—hmm. Anne ought to be in Hollywood now. How in thunder was he to go there, with this invention already on his hands? She'd say to herself, "Just a big four-flusher; he never intended coming south." And she'd make a mean remark about his machine—well, the invention would probably be a little machine—something to put the trade-mark on eggs, perhaps, or to make genuine pigskin out of sawdust and a secret ingredient—but it would be the means of getting him the very thing Anne didn't think he'd come south in.

Slowly John Andrew, out of sheer inexperience, built up a tremendous plant, blooming over night, and selling the Kellogg...whatever it was going to be. An undercurrent of doubt he kept fiercely in the background, and whenever it assailed him he daydreamed more completely. How'd all those big fellows really make their money? A process of making steel; an invention cutting the cost of railroading; a new way to manufacture silk. That was what he was going to do, for certainly some one had a machine which, given the money to develop, would do some miraculous work.

What he might do would be to interest some sound personality — a banker for choice—in the enterprise, and sell him a tenth interest for $5,000. Just one strike like that, and the terms of the will were satisfied, and he could then insist that the business be continued in his own name, Kellogg & Co., Inc. He'd drop a note to Anne on that stationery; a modest steel gray with engraved letters, with "office of the president" in the upper left hand corner, telling her just when he'd be in Los Angeles.

A machine swerved up to the curb, slowed, and the driver started out, calling suddenly, "Hi, Kellogg!"

"This's a loading zone," the other said. "Jump in, John Andrew. It's good to see you again. What you doin' out here?"

John Andrew climbed into the sedan, and said, "By gosh, I'm tired. I'm a business man now, Pete. Nice car."

"You bet. Beauty and performance, boy. On a visit?"

"Well," John Andrew said thoughtfully, "I may do a little investing here. How're things going, Pete?"

His companion, despite the expensive automobile and immaculate attire, said, "Not so good, Andy."

"You fellows out here think you've got to make a million to be happy," John Andrew chided. "I could be talked into buying a drink, Pete, if you knew a place where there's a chance of getting less than 50 per cent wood alcohol."

A few minutes later John Andrew sighed. "A real bar," he said. "And a bartender who twirls the ice in one glass while he mixes the cocktails with the other. And—yes, I believe that's going to be a pickled onion. Pete, I'm glad I found you, or, to be more exact, you found me."

It was at the third cocktail that Peter Merriman became confidential: "You mustn't judge by the car, Andy. I know that the Mercury's a magnificent job. You can't compare it with anything sellin' for less than double its price. It's got dignity and beauty, and it'll hit 80 faster than any other car on the market. You can get service anywhere; you can't get that with foreign cars, Andy. You can run a Mercury 50 all day long—"

"And spend the night in jail."

"Let me tell you about the records the Mercury holds."

"Let me buy another drink," John Andrew said. "You proud owners give me a pain in the neck."

"You don't know what it is to be hard up, Andy," he said. "You never had to face any real problem in your life."

Kellogg looked at him, but said nothing.

"Here you are, looking for a chance to make a couple or hundred thousand at least, and here am I——"

"Just about to get outside another Martini," John Andrew said hurriedly. He decided that 850 wouldn't make any difference one way or the other; old Pete had been one of the gang, and nothing like Jennings. Nevertheless, the last cocktail did not increase the little mellow glow the others had started.

"Here I am," Merriam said sadly, "trying to hang on to a job, and knowing darn well that I'm going to be let out on Saturday. How long you goin' to be in San Francisco, Andy?"

"Hard to tell."

"You ought to have a car."

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Today—Harry Conquers His Jealousy

HARRY UNDERWOOD made no movement toward Robert Savarin's letter which I was holding out to him for the second time.

"I don't think I ought to read even a paragraph of the poor devil's letter," he protested reluctantly.

"Do you think I would ask you to do it if I were not sure, not only that it is necessary, but that Robert himself would not object to your reading this particular passage? Indeed, I am not sure that he did not have a secret wish that you might read it," I added.

He shot a quick glance at me, and then held out his hand for the letter. I handed it to him, folded so that only what I wished him to read was visible, and then stood by silent, with my brain going over every sentence which he was reading as if my eyes were on the words also.

"——when I waken, as I often do in these pain-filled nights, I can see your pleasant face—last thing my eyes will see—know that you cannot come to me even for an hour. I can not ask of any man what I would not give myself, and I know that were the conditions reversed, and you my wife, I could not let you go to see even a dying man who had counted upon taking my place. So this is good-bye——" I heard Harry Underwood's quick intake of his breath and the crumpling of the paper in his hand, but he did not speak for a minute which seemed an hour while I kept my eyes averted from his face and hardly dared to breathe.

For I knew what a tremendous struggle was going on within him, and though I did not doubt the outcome, I appreciated the torment of his emotions and wished that I could efface myself from the landscape, but when at last he spoke his voice was even, controlled, and as I looked at him I saw that his face and eyes were calm, and his lips held the wraith of a smile. He had conquered himself thoroughly—that was plainly to be seen. Whatever he meant to do, he would go through with it steadily, quietly, with no outward hint of whatever emotion might be shaking him.

Harry Capitulates

"Dear girl!" he said softly, "you probably are the best little scout, to say nothing of being the most accomplished special pleader in the whole world. If ever I'm in danger of the electric chair, I'm going to send for you, and then rest easy."

"I'll do my best for you," I told him, smiling, accepting his evident wish to postpone the issue between us for a few seconds.

"You needn't have shown me that paragraph," he went on. "If you'd have asked me to say what I know you want to hear, I would have done it. But—I'm not sorry I read it, although it's like seeing a man's heart cut open before you. The poor devil! How he must have — I wonder if I——"

I put my hands up to his shoulders and shook him, my eyes laughing, though they felt far more like tears.

"Stop right there!" I said. "Robert Savarin did love her, but he failed her because of his jealousy. You have been everything that a woman could wish about Marion, and there is no 'wonder' or 'if' or 'and' about this. You can make Lillian far happier than Robert Savarin ever could have done, even if Lillian had never known you. Won't you take my word for this?"

Shall Marion Know?

"I'll take your word for anything, little Lady Fair," he said with shining eyes. "And will you take this word back to Lil? I'll tell her my self after a bit, but I want you to tell her first. She is to go to see Robert Savarin as soon as she wishes, and either stay until—the end, or go again as often as she chooses. I understand fully, and I am not only willing that she go, but I shall insist upon her doing so."

"You dear!" I said ecstatically, grasping his arm, for I was more relieved than I was willing to acknowledge even to myself. I had not been quite sure of him in those moments of his battle with his jealousy.

"What have I told you about looking up at a guy like that?" he demanded. "Luckily, I am now immune to you, but you're going to get yourself soundly kissed some day, I warn you."

"I'll remember," I told him demurely, and then he put another question.

"Do you think I'd ought to take Marion along?" he asked.

"No, a thousand times, no," I answered vehemently, and his eyes showed his relief at my answer. "It would only shadow her Christmas, give her a painful memory and do no possible good. Robert remembers her as a little girl, and not as the young woman she almost is now. To see her as she is now, would only disturb him."

"It will shadow her Christmas to have her mother gone on an errand like this," he argued reasonably.

"She may never have to know anything about it," I said slowly.

"What do you mean?" he asked, plainly startled.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

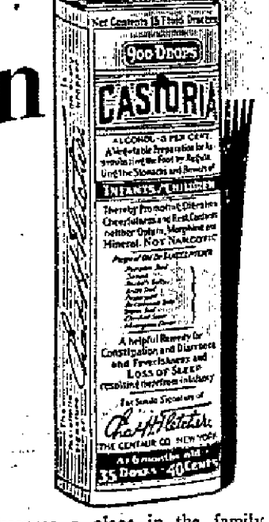
Children Cry for it



Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

HONEST VALUE for your money!

A prominent American recently advised that everyone should "spend money judiciously." There is a lot of hard headed common sense in that simple statement.

Money spent for increased comfort is an investment — money spent for the preservation of health is an investment—money spent for an education is also an investment—even money spent for experience often proves to return dividends.

Consider then, the money YOU might spend for a good Used Car. Think of it in terms of an investment in health, comfort, pleasure and education, that will accrue not only to yourself but also to every member of your family.

Many families TODAY, find it PAYS them to have TWO cars—that it really means transportation ECONOMY—and a tenfold increase in CONVENIENCE.

In Star Classified Section today will be found splendid used cars of every make and model, at "priced to sell" prices, every value an HONEST one.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

THURSDAY. It is still warm but there is ice on the pond and snow in the shady places, so it is too early for a fella to go swimming and the water ain't warm enough. I'll be glad when it ain't and is. Jubilee will be glad too, because he likes to go in after clubs when I throw them in, and come out and lay down on someone's clothes with his tongue hanging out till he gets dry or I make him go in again. If it is my clothes he is laying on I make him go in right away, but if it is some of the other fellas I let him lay as long as he wants to.

My grandfather had his name in the paper because he saw the first robin, and I said when I was feeding my face and the family were talking about it that I wondered how the newspaper found it out, and my aunt said maybe some little bird told them, and I said maybe it was a shitpoke told them. That must have been very funny because they all roared except my grandfather and his face got as red as the top of his head where the pancake landed on it yesterday. I don't know what was funny about it, because the shitpoke is a bird and it might as well tell the newspaper as any other kind of a bird, but a parroo is the only bird that can talk, and all they can say is swear words, only it isn't safe to have a parrot any more because they carry a sickness and people catch it and die, so everyone is killing their parroos and I should think they would be swearing worse than ever.

I was up in the hayloft this morning when Nibs came sneaking in, and he said, "Where is the garbage can baby" and I said, "Here he is," and I started to slide down the ladder and he went out of the barn so fast he almost tore the doors off the hinges and my aunt had just got her hand on the door when both doors and Nibs hit her at once, and Nibs was past her and running for the front gate but he was looking around to see what he done so he missed the gate and almost busted the fence, and we helped my aunt up and asted her if she was hurt, and she finely said, it was a wonder she wasn't killed but she guessed she'd live, but she was all wet in the back so she went in to get dry. She said she had come out to see if some little boy would go to the drugstore for her, but she might as well try to send a tornado, so Feeble said she would go, and my grandfather said that would be good too.

Nibs was at school ahead of us, and his stummick is black and blue where it hit the fence. He showed it to us out back of the school house, and Goop spit on it and had to go over the back fence to get away. We all thought that was pretty good.

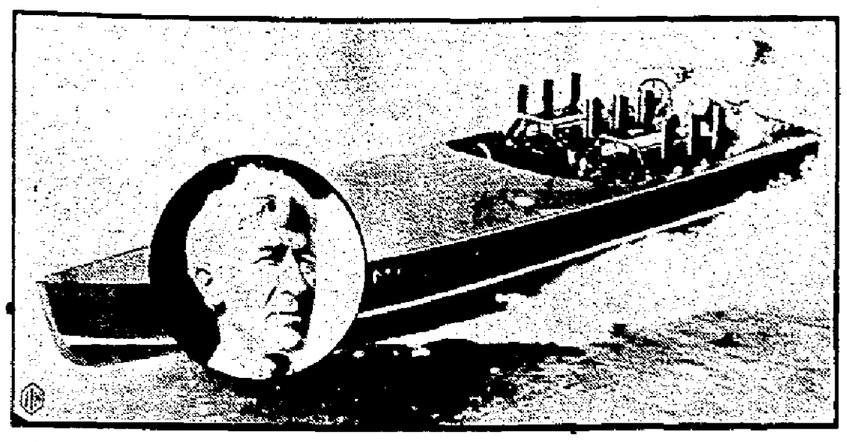
WORLD'S FASTEST BOAT AND SKIPPER



Lacking other competition, Gar Wood, veteran speedboat champion of the world, has challenged his own record of 93.123 miles an hour, made last March on Indian Creek. Gar says he means to set a new world record of 100 miles an hour in the Miami Beach Regatta next month before retiring from the field. "Miss America VIII," in which the speed king hopes to set his new record, is shown out for a trial run with Orlin Johnson, chief mechanic, at the engine controls.

CITY PLANS LEASE

Part of Airport Tract and Sewage Acreage Open for Renters

Twenty-eight acres of land belonging to the city will be leased for cultivation if a suitable person to do the work can be found, according to B. J. Harlow, service director.

A 12-acre tract immediately west of Marion airport is so surrounded by two streams that it cannot be used as part of the airport, but is accessible to cultivation machinery. Another tract is at the sewage disposal plant west of the city.

It is hoped that both sections may be sown with oats, and that the city's share of the crop may be used as feed for horses in the service department.

HARDING TO CLOSE SEASON WITH FRAY IN COLLEGE TOWN

Hard Workouts End for Red and Black Basketball Quintet

FINISHING touches will be added to the basketball season this week by the Harding High school cagers when the Red and Black quintet meets Delaware at Edwards gym Friday night.

Last night the Preparatists held their last hard workout of the week. Every effort is being extended by Coach Compton to remove his team from the rut that it has followed throughout the season.

With the district tournament two weeks away, the local coach is hoping that his quintet can redeem itself against some of the best aggregations in the state.

Delaware will be a tough nut for the Red and Black to crack. The college town five holds a victory over the locals after a battle played on Star auditorium floor. On its home court Delaware rules an even greater favorite to win.

While Harding is playing at Delaware things will be happening in the North Central Ohio league. Two games that are expected to have an important bearing on the championship will be on the sport menu.

At Mansfield Shelby will be fighting to keep its record clean. A victory for the Shelby team means the championship of the N. C. O. A defeat will give Mansfield and Shelby and possible Galion a tie for first place. Galion's fate depends on the outcome of its game at Bucyrus.

As soon as the league season ends Friday night, all quintets in the conference will start casting eyes on state honors.

League Clubs Begin To Worry About Large Holdout List

Ugliest Man in Movies To Wrestle in Marion Tuesday

He's the ugliest man in the movies. If you think different take a peep at the picture of Bull Montana to the right.

Montana will be the featured attraction at the Steam Shovel gym here next Tuesday night when he meets Clare Kauffman in the main go of Bernie Creswell's wrestling show.

The Bull infers his wrestling with his movie acting. Most of his fame in addition to his unusual ears were gained on the mat. He holds quite a reputation as a rough matman.

PLAYERS DEMANDING MORE MONEY STILL STICK TO DEMANDS

Number Not Signed Up on Both Circuits Is Greatest in Years

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—Although it has been spending its time assuring everybody that it isn't in the least concerned about the situation, major league baseball today is facing the menace of a holdout list that is longer and lustier than any the game has known in years and some of the outfits are frankly worried. It might be added that they are justifiedly so. There isn't anything in the least comical about the fact that more than a dozen of the game's greatest are demanding the kind of money that generally is used for buying a street car franchise. I don't think $200,000 would cover the total demand being made by Ruth, Babe Herman, Grimes, Lindstrom, Jackson, Vance, Wesley Ferrell, Roush, Willis Hudlin, Benton, O'Farrell and others.

Herman, it seems, has twice returned his contract to the Brooklyn club with the succinct information that he said $25,000 the first time they heard him. Grimes, an abrupt, truculent man, has told much the same story to the Pittsburgh outfit. Ferrell and Hudlin, a couple of bright, young men who are willing to start at the top and work upward, are understood to be imbued with $20,000 notions. Their contracts are said to have landed back in Cleveland on the first bounce yesterday.

Unless they signed while the writer was out in the back yard looking after his diamond mines, O'Doul and Klein, respectively the batting and home run champions of the National league, are also outside what we ingeniously call the fold. O'Doul, I understand, originally wanted $25,000 but weakened so pitifully that something like $17,500 was the best price I heard quoted.

This is typical of the general upward trend, as the market sharps say, and undoubtedly Ruth's $85,000 stand has convinced the boys that they never really had appreciated themselves before. However, if we were to decide these things on the basis of comparative values, Herman would be worth not a nickel more than O'Doul and neither of them, judged as a financial asset to his club, could hope to ring up more than one cash face at the gate to every 10 for Ruth.

Anyhow, the training season is upon us and few of the fretful and distrait young men on the list are showing signs of weakening. Travis Jackson is something of an exception. He hardly is exhibiting strength and moral character by hanging around the Giants' training camp at San Antonio and it is all too probable that they will pluck him off the fence within a few days.

But men like Grimes, Lindstrom, Vance, Benton and Roush aren't plucked without using a pair of ice tongs for tweezers. Roush, as a matter of fact, used to hold out just to amuse himself. This time, they didn't shave his contract with a razor blade. They cut it with a sickle. Unless there is some attempt at adjustment, it is possible that the man will retire altogether, since he seems to be almost ready to go to the laundry with the rest of the wash.

As for the others, baseball naturally isn't worried about them retiring to some nice, refined job in the glue factory.

WESLEYAN DEFEATED BY DENISON QUINTET

Bishops Nosed Out of First Place Race by Surprise Beating

GRANVILLE, Feb. 20—The Ohio Wesleyan cagesters' hope of sharing the championship in the Buckeye conference with Cincinnati was lessened today, following their surprise defeat at the hands of Denison here last night, 28 to 27.

Denison, trailing at the half, 10 to 15, came back with a rush that pulled the game out of the fire for a victory.

Cincinnati, which was forced into an overtime period with Dayton to gain victory, needs only to capture its game with Ohio Saturday to take the championship.

Bruins Heading Toward Title; Beat Cleveland

CHICAGO, Feb. 20—After defeating the Cleveland professional basketball team, 21 to 15, the Chicago Bruins today set out to capture the second half championship in the league race.

Cleveland threatened twice to upset the attack of the Bruins, once at the close of the first period and again early in the second session.

OHIO BEATS LUTHERANS

ATHENS, Feb. 20—Playing a stellar game of basketball, the Ohio quintet romped through the Wittenberg cage squad, 43 to 31, here last night. The Lutherans trailed at the half, 25 to 15.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

CAPITAL DOWNS O. N. U.

ADA, Feb. 20—Behind at the half, 14 to 18, the Capital basketball squad staged a comeback which netted it a victory over the Ohio Northern five, 37 to 33, here last night.

PHIL SCOTT WILL BE MAIN EXHIBIT TODAY AT SOCIETY AFFAIR

Will Box Five Rounds for Elite at Palm Beach Club

PALM BEACH, Fla. Feb. 20—Society folks of Palm Beach today were mildly thrilled over the prospect of getting an eyeful of Phil Scott, British heavyweight championship contender, who will be the star attraction in a boxing exhibition at the fashionable Oasis club this afternoon. Three hundred invitations have been issued and attendance will be limited.

Scott, who has been training in Miami for his bout next Thursday night with Jack Sharkey, was to leave Miami this morning for Palm Beach, accompanied by his trainers and 30 or 40 newspapermen. William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, and well known in Palm Beach, will also make the trip.

It will be the first peep society has had at the English champion, and the affair is expected to be quite a swanky event, something new in American pugilistic circles. Scott will box four or five rounds for the edification of the elite of Palm Beach, who have taken a strong fancy to boxing.

Tommy Loughran, retired light-heavyweight champion, will also box at this afternoon's exhibition.

Sir Oliver Duncan, wealthy British sportsman, is expected to introduce Scott from the ring, which will be set up in a beautiful patio, with its background of palm trees.

Boxing has taken hold in Palm Beach in a big way and many young society men have become adept at swinging gloves. Quite a stir has been occasioned by the announcement of a boxing match scheduled for Saturday afternoon between Loughran and James Cromwell, young society boxer and the son of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury. The event will be held at Wright field.

Loughran has been training at West Palm Beach for his forthcoming battle with Pierre Charles, Belgian heavyweight champion. The Philadelphia adonis is exceedingly popular here and many society personages plan to be at the ring-side to cheer for him.

Jack Sharkey Goes Through Hard Workout

Sharkey snapped back Charles' head several times and showed almost amazing execution with a tantalizing left jab and a mean hook. His short right was working well too and it was with this punch he rocked Charles.

Rookie Pitchers Ordered Southern Training Camp

CLEVELAND, Feb. 20—General Manager Billy Evans of the Cleveland Indians baseball club, today ordered Pitchers Roxy Lawson and Lefty Gliatto, both of Terre Haute, Ind., to report to the Tribe's training camp at New Orleans next Monday.

With the names of Willis Hudlin and Wesley Ferrell, backbones of the Indians' hurling staff last year, on the holdout list, Evans decided to call Lawson and Gliatto into the Cleveland roost of pitchers.

STARTS COMEBACK

KENYON EASY WINNER

GAMBIER, Feb. 20—Otterbein succumbed to the Kenyon cagemen here last night 32-26, in a fast and rough game, which saw four men excluded on personals. Kenyon led at the half 21 to 9.

Vic Gillis Runs Scoring in League to 89 Points

WITH an imposing total of 89 points, Victor Gillis, former Harding star who is now romping around the forward berth on the first Christian team, is head and shoulders above all scorers in the Senior Sunday School league after games played Tuesday night.

W. Merchant is giving the Christian flash his greatest opposition. He has scored 63 points. Rife, of the First Presbyterian quint, is in third place with 56 points.

DANDRUFF
A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—Adv.

Y-INDUS WILL PLAY ANN ARBOR FRIDAY

Michigan Team After Second Victory Over Locals in Game Scheduled on Y. M. C. A. Court

MARION'S Y-Indus Ramblers fresh from their victory in the club tournament at Dayton last week, will be out for blood Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. when they meet the Ann Arbor Y five. The contest ranks as the outstanding on the Marion floor this season and marks the first appearance of an out of town quintet against the locals here.

Marion has won 17 out of 20 games so far this year. One of the three defeats and the only one to come from Y. M. C. A. squad was scored against the locals by Ann Arbor.

The Ann Arbor team comes to Marion with a lineup of great cage stars. Last year it won the Michigan championship and are out to duplicate the feat again this year.

It will probably be the last game for the locals before the state Y. M. C. A. championship tournament at Dayton, March 8. According to present plans the locals will enter the tournament without the necessity of playing in a district cage meet.

Cincy U. Plays Overtime Game To Defeat Dayton

CINCINNATI, Feb. 20 — The basketeers of Cincinnati university were forced into an overtime period before their game with Dayton could be counted as a win, here last night.

The score was 37 to 35 in favor of Cincinnati. The Bearcats also led at the half 14-to-12, but were hard pushed by the Daytonites. Only a field goal by Popp, Cincinnati forward, just as the gun sounded saved the game, as it tied the score.

What will come of the experiment remains to be seen. It was tried to solve the problem growing out of the increasing lack of interest reported in meetings of fraternal societies. James A. Maddox, vice president of the American Insurance Union, told those present last night that the Marion chapter was not the only chapter that was suffering from lack of interest. The same thing is happening to lodges over the entire United States, he said.

Seek Revival Method

In view of this condition officials of the society are attempting to find some means of continuing the friendships that were formed in lodge halls years ago when fraternal societies flourished. For the experiment here they adopted, in part, methods of the luncheon clubs. If the plan tried last night is finally adopted it will mean that monthly dinner meetings will take the place of the lodge hall.

Marion was picked as the place for trying the experiment because the city is considered to be a typical American city. Maddox said last night. The turnout for the dinner convinced him, he said, that he had made no mistake in selecting Marion.

Results of the meeting last night will be placed before every A. I. U. chapter in the United States.

Entertainment was provided by artists from radio station WAIU at Columbus. Miss Martha Ludwig offered a number of accordion selections. Clara Abrams sang a number of selections. Fred Palbert, station manager, led the group singing.

Maddox talked briefly. He touched particularly on the recently published book, "The Passing of Normalcy," by Charles W. Wood, which takes Marion for a background.

A. I. U. chapters in Bucyrus, Newark and Columbus were represented at the meeting. Whether the dinner meeting will be repeated here will depend on action of the local chapter, it was stated this morning by Bert Brashares, chapter head.

Grange Lecturers To Convene for Second Annual Schoo

COLLEGE ARRANGES RECEPTION FEB. 28

More Than 900 Grange Lecturers in State, Check Shows

PLAN TO ATTEND

Representatives from District To Hear Four-Day Program

How to provide interesting programs for the meetings of hundred of granges in Ohio will be the problem considered by those who attend the second annual school for grange lecturer at Ohio State university, Feb. 24-28. There are more than 900 grange lecturers.

R. Bruce Tom, extension specialist in recreation at Ohio State, is in charge of the school and faculty members will come from the university.

Ralph Felton, professor of rural organization at Cornell university, and Miss Jennie Buell, of Ann Arbor, Mich., editor of the lecturers' page in the National Grange magazine, will also conduct meetings.

Those in attendance at the school will be guests of a reception given by the college of agriculture Feb. 28.

Granges throughout the district are planning to send their lecturers or representatives of their organization to the school which promises to be well attended throughout the four-day session.

Drop Wreath from Plane on Grave of Kenton Man

KENTON, Feb. 20—For the first time in the city's history tribute was paid Wednesday to one of her citizen dead from the air. It was over the grave, in Grove cemetery, of Orville H. Fulton, one of the founders of the Cedar Lawn airport, two miles south of the city, whose sudden death occurred early in the week from cerebral hemorrhage.

As the body was being lowered into the grave an airplane, piloted by Herbert Rich, licensed Kenton pilot, swooped low down and dropped wreaths on the grave.

Hundreds of people attended the funeral rites over the remains of the prominent Kenton business man. The Masonic lodge of which he was a leading member was in charge, and the funeral sermon was delivered by the Rev. A. W. Snow, pastor of the LaRue Baptist church and former pastor here.

Fulton for years has been an aviation enthusiast and as a mark of his interest, he, together with his father, donated the land and contributed much of the work in completing the Cedar Lawn airport which was dedicated last September.

ASHLEY P. T. A. PRESENTS PROGRAM

Name Committee To Serve for March Meeting; Quartet Sings

ASHLEY, Feb. 20—A regular meeting of the Ashley Parent-Teachers' association was held in the high school auditorium Tuesday night. The question box was discussed by Mrs. B. E. Barber.

Songs were presented by the male quartet composed of J. H. Wilson, Alfred Myers, Carl Hamilton and Cecil Gardner. Mrs. Dan Earl talked on "Hot Lunches in the School." A reading, "Buddy's Impression," was given by Rosalind Kelly, and Mrs. James Barber sang "The Song of the Thrush."

C. J. Kelfer, R. B. Warner, Ellsworth Bartlett, James Barber and Reid Slack were appointed to serve on the program committee for the next meeting to be held Mar. 18.

SET DATE

Motion for New Trial in Crestline Case Scheduled for Monday

BUCYRUS, Feb. 20—Notification has been given Prosecutor J. D. Sears and Attorneys C. E. Schaber and L. H. Kreiler, counsel for Mrs. Edna Nelson and Mrs. Eleanor Blake, Crestline sisters, that the sisters' motion for a new trial on charges of vote fraud will be heard before the court next Monday. Hearing of the motion, which was filed immediately after the verdict of guilty was returned, was postponed to give the stenographer ample time to write the transcript of the case. Fifteen reasons were given by the defendants' counsel why the sisters were entitled to a new trial.

ELKS' MINSTRELS DRAW LARGE CROWD

Galion Revue Entertains Audience at Charity Benefit

GALION, Feb. 20—The annual Elk's minstrels, "Ambassador Revue" was presented last night in the local high school auditorium before a large and appreciative audience. The presentation was well given and received excellent commendation by all who witnessed the first night of the show.

A cast of 80 people took part in the minstrels. The revue was presented in two parts with an intermission of eight minutes between the parts. Theodore Shaefer, pianist, accompanied all of the musical numbers.

The show was rehearsed, directed and staged by G. S. Moorer, representing the John B. Rogers Producing Co., of Fostoria. Overtures and popular music were furnished between the parts and at the introduction by an orchestra under the direction of Paul Wilson. Clever tap dances, popular song hits, and a variety of novelties were included in the production.

The show will be repeated tonight with the proceeds going to charity.

ENTERTAIN GUESTS

Galion Chapter of D. A. R. Presents Program at Social Meeting

GALION, Feb. 20—At the home of Mrs. E. P. Monroe, Harding Way West, the Olentangy Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, held a guest night program Tuesday night. The program opened with Mrs. Donald Townsend's Glee club singing a group of three numbers, "Why," by Tchaikovsky; "Thou Art the Night Wind," Gaul; "I Sing Thee Songs of Araby," Clay. Mariam Sayre and Ethel Tracht then presented a one-act play, "A Midnight Fantasy"; Miss Elizabeth Robertson played two beautiful violin numbers accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Townsend; this was followed by two vocal numbers, "Moonlight," Schumann, and "The Lass with the Delicate Air," Old English, sung by Mrs. Townsend with Miss Harriet Wisterman at the piano; "For Distinguished Service," was another one-act play presented by Miss Tracht and Miss Sayre. The Glee club closed the program with three songs, "Staines Morris," sixteenth century folk song, arranged by Percy Fletcher, "Indian Lullaby," Mrs. H. A. Beach, and "Do You Know My Garden?" Berwald. At the close, Mrs. H. B. Gill presented the chapter with a large silk American flag. Mrs. E. B. Padgett, past regent, gave a speech of acceptance following which Mrs Gill was presented a basket of roses while Mrs. Donald Townsend sang, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses." Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. Fred C. Miller.

GETS VERDICT

Crawford County Jury Awards Plaintiff $450 in Death of Horses

BUCYRUS, Feb. 20—C. C. Tracht of Leesville was awarded a verdict of $450 in common pleas court yesterday, the amount asked in a suit filed by Tracht against the Suburban Power Co. as the result of the death of two horses owned by Tracht which were killed by live wires thrown to the ground by a storm.

Attorneys for Tracht were R. V. and J. D. Sears and Attorney Hammacker of Canton represented the Power company.

Like College Student, Delegation Needs More Money

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—The American delegation to the London naval conference probably is going to have to ask congress for more expense money soon.

The delegation started out with an appropriation of $250,000. It was estimated that this amount would cover expenses for almost three months, but it was admitted today that the expenses have been larger than anticipated.

The delegation is housed at the Ritz hotel in London, occupying most of three floors. With the advisers, naval experts, stenographers and secretaries, the American delegation comprises about 100 persons.

ATTORNEY DIES

End Comes to John F. Wilson of Columbus at Church Wedding

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20—John F. Wilson, 60, prominent Columbus attorney, is dead here today following a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered yesterday afternoon while attending a wedding.

Wilson was attending the marriage of Miss Mary Moorehouse and Richard T. Rector, and had just taken his place in a pew at the Broad Street Presbyterian church, with the groom's parents, when he fell to the floor unconscious.

He died a few minutes later without regaining consciousness. The groom's father, Fred C. Rector, was a partner of Wilson in one of the leading law firms of Franklin county

TO PROBE JURY

Investigation Follows Discovery of Man Who Couldn't Speak English

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—Investigation of the jury situation was planned today by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle following the revelation that John Cruz, a Cuban who can not speak English, was a member of a jury which failed to reach a verdict.

The case was that of Charles Beadon and seven others charged with mail fraud in sales of Utah lead stock. After more than a month was spent in listening to evidence and 27 hours devoted to trying to reach a verdict, the jury disagreed with Cruz as the one juror dissenting.

DISMISSAL ASKED

Hostility Grows Toward Philadelphia's Safety Director

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20—Growing hostility towards the "iron hand" policies of Director of Public Safety L. B. Schofield marked further developments today in the situation growing out of the liquor raid on the Benjamin Franklin hotel here Sunday when 10 married couples and four other persons were seized during a party.

"Instant dismissal" of the director was demanded by the Philadelphia branch of the Travelers' Protective association an organization with a membership of 2,200 here and a total of 14,000 throughout the state.

The director was especially criticized for raiding a suite of rooms without warrants and for lugging the married men and their wives to police cells.

Berlin Group Moves To Control Liquor Sale

BERLIN, Feb. 20—The economic committee of the Reichstag took another step in the direction of temperance today when it passed a sweeping resolution governing the sale of liquor and tobacco.

Bucyrus Man Perfects Brick Improvement

BUCYRUS, Feb. 20 — R. B. Stuckey, an employe of the W. A. Riddell company in Bucyrus, has recently perfected a process whereby the entire sandlime brick industry will be revolutionized, according to the opinion expressed by members of the National Sandlime Brick association at a meeting held recently in New York City, where Stuckey presented the process for inspection. The process involves the use of a marble or granite covering, veneering one face of the brick, while the remainder is of ordinary sandlime mixture.

Thoughtfulness Distinguishes Our Service . .

THE distinguishing quality of the successful mortician is thoughtfulness. This thoughtfulness is manifest not only at the time of the funeral service, but in the facilities prepared in advance. Every desire of his clients must have been foreseen long before, and provided for. But such preparation is only possible against a background of long experience. Years of service must have taught the mortician these little ways so essential in adding to the comfort and convenience of those he is called upon to serve. Our service has had just such a background of experience. During the many years that we have been ministering to the needs of this community, we have acquired a fund of sympathy and understanding which enables us to fulfill the unspoken wishes of our clients.

HE WAS HERE, MR. DICKSON, BUT HE'S GONE NOW! HE HEARD YOUR VOICE AND BEFORE I REALIZED WHAT WAS UP HE HAD OPENED THE WINDOW, JUMPED OUT, AND DISAPPEARED INTO THE NIGHT!

SO HE GOT AWAY AGAIN, DID HE? OH, WELL — I'LL CATCH UP WITH HIM AGAIN SOMEDAY AND HE WON'T ESCAPE THE NEXT TIME! HOW DID HE HAPPEN TO COME TO YOUR HOUSE, CASPER?
I GUESS YOU KNOW HOW HE CAUSED ME TO LOSE A LOT OF MONEY IN THE STOCK MARKET, DON'T YOU, MOOSE? HE PAID ME BACK EVERY PENNY OF IT! HE CAME HERE TONIGHT TO GIVE ME THE MONEY! HE ISN'T SUCH A BAD SORT, AFTER ALL!
I CAN'T IMAGINE MORTIMER CLAMBY DOING A KIND DEED! IF I EVER CATCH HIM I'LL HAVE HIS HEAD EXAMINED!
I'M ALMOST GLAD HE GOT AWAY!
SOMEWHERE AMONG THE SHADOWS IS MORTIMER CLAMBY, STILL A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE. BUT WE CAN'T HELP BUT FEEL THAT TONIGHT HIS HEART IS LIGHTER THAN IT HAS BEEN FOR A LONG TIME!

Industrials, Specialties Depressed In First Hour

MARKET WEAKENED BY SELLING WAVE

Oil Stocks Decline in Face of New Price Cuts in East

WESTINGHOUSE OFF 4

General Weakness Does Not Extend to Utility Shares on Exchange

BY W. S. COUSINS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—Industrial stocks and specialties were depressed in the first hour today by a repetition of the selling pressure which unsettled the whole list in the final period yesterday. Losses of one to four points were recorded for the speculative leaders, including U. S. Steel, Westinghouse and General Electric, but in spite of this weakness the utility stocks were able to resume their forward move, with Brooklyn Union Gas up five points to 176.

Westinghouse sold off four points at 175 before meeting with any special buying demand, and General Electric at 72⅝ was down six points from the high of the move. United States Steel sold off 1½ at 188⅜.

The oil stocks were again under pressure as the result of the confused situation in the producing and refining end of the industry. Eastern refiners cut gasoline prices again today in an effort to stave off the influx of western "gas." Standard Oil of California sold at the year's lowest price at 53⅜, down 1¾ and Standard of New Jersey established a new low for the year at 58½.

SPLIT GAMES

Edison and Marion Business College Cagers Clash

EDISON, Feb. 20—Local high school cagers last night split even in a double header with the Marion Business college teams. The local boys defeated the visiting quintet, 23 to 21, after a hard battle. Marion failed to locate the basket in the final periods after leading 10 to 12 at the half.

Crowley led the Marion girls to a 23-to-11 victory over Edison. She scored 13 points.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 — Wheat dropped sharply to new low prices on the crop yesterday, with the local market showing the effects of technical weakness brought about by speculative uncertainty over the mixed economic and political situation prevailing in the world trade. Foreign markets led the decline.

Weakness in wheat brought pressure of liquidation into the corn pits and coarse grains and rye were sharply lower. Cash interests sold corn and an easier tone in the cash market was a depressing factor.

Technical Weakness

Fears that the recent uncertainty in the wheat market had weakened the technical position were confirmed by the break yesterday. There was nothing new regarding the situation that could be directly blamed for yesterday's sharp decline, and it was generally interpreted by the trade as a culmination of the factors which have made the speculative position unattractive.

Weakness of foreign markets and particularly the severe decline at Winnipeg, with their prices at times at a discount under ours, induced further heavy liquidation. With prices down around the farm board level there has been a distinct reluctance to press the selling side and the resultant paucity of short interest was apparent as declines failed to bring out buying. The previous day's rally had further cut down the short interest and created some long interest that sold out.

Furthmore, the unprecedented disinterest of European buyers, together with present glowing prospects for a large Winter crop, have unquestionably dampened buying enthusiasm and outside interest, despite a more or less general feeling that values would not decline substantially below the farm board price. Pit observers yesterday said the outside interest was the smallest in some time, hence a further lack of support to offset the liquidation.

News Not Bullish

There was nothing in the news yesterday to stimulate purchases even on the sharp decline. Foreign demand was dull, Liverpool was weaker than expected, though they showed some strength on lighter pressure of Argentine offerings.

Cooperatives were still taking wheat in domestic markets, but in the local market it was reported a car of No. 2 hard which did not meet the existing requirements sold at $1.12¼.

Cables said that no further progress had been made on the plans advanced for the purchase of wheat by England direct from Canada.

Locals and commission houses sold corn and there was pressure from cash interests. Weakness in the pot market was a factor and it was said this was due to buyers withdrawing because of lack of elevator room.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Florida celery is now the center of the celery market as far as Marion is concerned. New York stalks have proven too tough, and are rapidly being replaced by the crisper varieties from the south. The price is 8 to 12 cents a stalk, according to size.

California oranges now cover a price range of 35 to 65 cents a dozen. The top price ones arrived recently in the form of several crates of large juicy navel oranges.

WETS TO TEAR INTO AMENDMENT AGAIN

Hearings To Be Extended Despite Protests of "Bone Dry" Members

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20—With "bone dry" members prepared to demand curtailment of the "wet 100 hearings," the house judiciary committee met again today to hear further assaults upon the Eighteenth amendment by spokesmen for the leading wet organizations of the country.

Representative Graham, Republican of Pennsylvania, chairman, announced the hearings would be extended in spite of the action of the committee in his absence, in voting to close the wet side of the case today expert for one witness.

Although the committee will adjourn the hearings for a week after today, Graham declared the wets would be given a full opportunity to present their case for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth amendment.

He also disclosed he is preparing to present surprise witnesses of his own before the hearings are over to refute claims of drys.

Representatives of the medical departments of Johns Hopkins and Pennsylvania universities will be called by him to testify that moderate users of alcoholic beverages live longer than total abstainers, he said. They will testify as scientists that moderate use of liquor is beneficial, he said.

AGENT IMPROVES

Undercover Dry Officer Wounded Twice When Shot from Ambush

BELLAIRE, Feb. 20—The condition of Guy Casina, 37, undercover agent for the state prohibition department, who was wounded twice Tuesday night, was reported improved here today by hospital physicians.

Casina was fired upon when he was returning to his home. The shots were fired from ambush, he said.

STUDY OF MACHINERY PLANNED FOR CLASS

Short Course for Farm School To Start at Waldo Tuesday

A two weeks' farm machinery short course will be held in Waldo, opening at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Classes will be held on the top floor of the Michels garage there.

The course is being conducted through arrangement of the vocational agriculture department of the Waldo school, and enrollment is open to any men of the community. A small fee will be charged to cover the expenses of the course.

N. K. Bear, farm machinery expert, will teach the course. He has had a wide range of experience in short course work. He spent two years with the Michigan State college and five years in short course work in Ohio.

The course will deal with the adjustment, care, repair and operation of farm machinery. Each session will be divided into two parts, the first half devoted to lecture and discussion work and the second half to actual work on the machines which are being overhauled.

In order that the men who join the classes will get the most good from the course, they have been asked to get in touch with L. B. Fidler if they have machinery that needs overhauling. It will be desirable that a variety of kinds and makes are obtained for the classes.

The Record for POPULARITY
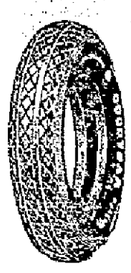
—held by Goodyear Tires



THE single record that, in our opinion, really counts with careful tire-buyers is the popularity record which Goodyear has held for fifteen years: "More people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind."

It simply says that an overwhelming percentage of your fellow-motorists get the most value and every-day satisfaction out of Goodyear Tires.

The reason, of course, is that Goodyear builds more than ¼ of all tires sold in America, enjoys lowest costs, can give greater values.

May we analyze your needs and recommend the most satisfactory type of Goodyear Tires and Tubes for you? You will also appreciate our courteous, efficient service. If you prefer, we will call at your home or office.

Eielson's Body Is Dug From Cabin of Airplane

BOTH FLIERS DIED INSTANTLY, BELIEF

Mystery of Disappearance of Pair Last November Finally Solved

MAY MOVE BODIES TODAY

Fatal Accident Occurred 90 Miles Northeast of North Cape, Siberia

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Feb. 20—Lieut. Carl Ben Eielson's body was dug from beneath his wrecked cabin plane 90 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, Tuesday, a radio message from Pilot Joseph Crosson, one of the searching party, said today.

Crosson, in his dispatch sent from the icebound fur trader Nanuk, said that both Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland, evidently had been killed instantly when their plane crashed last November. Borland's body was found last Thursday.

Although the gasoline supply used by the rescue planes is nearly exhausted, an attempt will be made today or tomorrow to transport the two bodies to the Nanuk, according to Crosson. From the Nanuk they will be brought here.

Eielson, a noted Arctic flier, and manager of the Alaska airways, was lost Nov. 9 when he and Mechanic Earl Borland flew from Teller, Alaska, with the Nanuk as their goal. Eielson was engaged in transporting the cargo of the Nanuk to Teller.

For weeks it was hoped that the two airmen were still alive, though forced down in some isolated place.

Searching parties were hastily organized to search for them, both by air and dog team. Stormy weather hampered the search by air and weeks later the wreckage of their plane was finally located by an aviator using the Nanuk as a flying base.

LIEUTENANT EIELSON

It was found about 40 miles from the ship.

The motor of Eielson's plane was found about 150 feet from the wrecked cabin, which still contained intact the food supply carried by the two airmen. A case of eggs in the cabin, by some strange freak, was unbroken. No trace of the airmen could be found, however.

Crews of native diggers were soon to work in the snow and ice. Both men fell considerable distance from the plane and subsequently stormy covered them.

Borland's helmet was first found and then his body. Spurred on by the discovery the searchers continued until the last victim was dug out.

Captain Swenson of the Nanuk, his daughter, Marion, and the captain of the Russian ship Stavropol have arrived here from Nome in an airplane manned by Pilot Dorbandt. They were to leave for Seward today enroute to Seattle.

Signs of Spring

SOME people wouldn't be satisfied if they arranged the weather program themselves.

Ever since the first snow flurry chased away the last lingering blossom last fall any number of Marion persons have been wishing for spring.

Now that spring—or spring-like weather—is here everybody is getting spring fever. Those who have been working industriously all winter are sitting at office windows just staring. "I feel like sulphur and molasses" is a common remark.

The courthouse step-warmers, however, are taking advantage of the weather. They have begun to straggle back after an absence of several months. It looks like they had bent the robins back.

Not To Be Disturbed

THE early afternoon period is a poor time to make a business call at Marion homes. It is at that time that Marion housewives are getting their beauty sleep and they resent being disturbed.

That is the report of a scissors grinder who makes periodic stops in this city as a part of his year-round itinerary. This representative of the long-established clan of nomadic scissors sharpeners was in Marion several days last week. He has his regular customers and is always on the alert in an effort to pick up new ones.

"It is seldom that I attempt drumming up business between about noon and 3 o'clock in the afternoon," he said. "At that time nearly all of the women are asleep or are preparing to go out calling. If they have any scissors work to be done, they are likely to take offense if disturbed at that time of the day and refuse to give me the business.

"It's the same every place. Marion is no exception," he asserted.

The passing of time has also brought about the passing of many traveling craftsmen, agents, and artists who were once numerous. Among those who have disappeared are the "little German band" which almost invariably came to Marion with the first sign of warm weather. The grind-organ man with his frolicksome monk is also in the discard and street corner vendors are scratched off Marion's list.

The scissors grinder is still holding on, although even he is becoming somewhat of a curiosity.

Harmony in Colors

Tinted cigarets for women! Especially in rose color. What a blow it is to a young man to think that his date of the evening has beautiful red lips and then to have her light up and find that the beautiful red lips fade off on the end of the little white cylinder.

Rose would be a favorite color, but all the high shades of color would sell too. Costumes that harmonize or contrast are cited as smart. What could kill a smart costume quicker than a dazzlingly white cigaret? To add the final touch, buy a cigaret that "goes" with the outfit, and there you are, inconspicuously well dressed.

But this idea of tinted cigarets doesn't go to include scented tobaccos. Far be it from the man or the girl who likes to smoke to buy a scented cigaret. But the tinted ones—oh, my dear—yes!

PARLEY DELEGATES ENJOY VACATION

Many Go to Country for Brief Respite; Japanese Watch Election Results

LONDON, Feb. 20—With the London naval conference in adjournment until next Wednesday pending the establishment of a new French government, the various delegates today enjoyed a welcome respite from the negotiations in which they have labored arduously since the opening of the parley on Jan. 21.

Secretary of State Stimson is already at his country house in Stanmore with others of the American delegation. He may occasionally make trips to London for unofficial talks with Premier MacDonald.

Foreign Minister Grandi is returning to Rome today. He will return here next Tuesday. Some of the other delegates will spend the next few days in the country.

Premier MacDonald and the rest of the British delegates will spend most of their time during the lapse in negotiations upon domestic matters requiring their official attention.

Only the committee of technical experts will continue consultations during the recess.

The Japanese delegation today eagerly awaited the result of the national elections now being held in Japan. The other delegations also kept a weather-eye open to the elections as it is hoped the results may bring about some modification in Japanese naval demands.

The Seat nobody would sit in ACTUALLY, his case was so bad that even when the car was crowded, the seat beside his was vacant. People simply wouldn't sit next to him. And he wondered why he didn't get anywhere, socially or in business.

Do you Offend? Probably

The only one who doesn't realize that he or she has halitosis (unpleasant breath) is the victim. Social ostracism follows. Don't fool yourself that you are always free of halitosis. That is folly. Surveys show 1 person out of 3 is a victim—due to the fact that the mouth is the constant scene of germ activities, some of which result in bad breath.

Don't take a chance
Keep yourself ever free of halitosis by the systematic and frequent use of full strength Listerine as a mouth wash.

Though safe and pleasant, full strength Listerine is an active germicide* which immediately attacks the cause of odors, and then, being a powerful deodorant, destroys the odors themselves.

Keep Listerine handy and use it before any engagement, that you may appear at your best. Our free Book of Etiquette may interest you. Address Dept. H-9, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

At last! Something new for breakfast

It took Quaker Oats scientists 17 years of experimentation to produce Crackels. It cost close to $1,000,000.

For Crackels isn't "just another cereal." It's a new cereal discovery! It's made by blending together all that's best in the three great American grains. Thus, in Crackels you get the vital energy of wheat, the rich nourishment of corn . . . the splendid proteins of oatmeal.

And best of all you have a unique crispness obtainable in no other ready-to-eat cereal. Crackels pours from the box to your dish fairly crackling with crispness. And it stays crisp—to the last spoonful—in spite of milk and cream.

Order Crackels today for breakfast tomorrow. Your family will delight in it. Your grocer has Crackels.

Crisp . . . Crunchy . . . new zest to the breakfast menu

THE

Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Married Lifers

"THE older you grow, the less you know about life," remarked Mrs. Green as she passed the cigarets and the bonbons simultaneously.

"And the less sure you become that you know anything," agreed Mrs. Divot, foolishly reaching for a sweet.

"Once," continued Mrs. Green, "if you had told me that easy divorce was not a good and wholesome thing, I should have called you a moron. I believed in modernism, trial marriage and a quick and painless surgical operation, the moment the ties began to chafe."

"And then, some," admitted Mrs. Green. "But, when I see all the matrimonial wrecks scattered around me, and read of these two-year-trial, 'love-me-and-leave-me' marriages, I'm inclined to grow frowsily mid-Victorian. Look at Russia, for instance—where the only grounds you have to offer for getting a divorce is that you are married!"

"Well, I'm looking at it. What about it?" asked Mrs. Divot cheerfully.

"There's at least one divorce for every marriage over there, according to statistics," stated Mrs. Green. "And the women are rising to protest bitterly, at the ease with which the men junk the old wife for a new one, every time they see a more attractive model. Russia is getting to be the big 'ex-wife' country!

"All the young men and women are born pessimists, and imbibe cynicism with their oatmeal and spinach. Maxim Gorky receives so many letters from them asking what it's all about and what life and love amount to, that he has had to answer them en masse."

"In Russia," averred Mrs. Divot, "I should say that life and love amount to about 30 kopeks!"

"On the other hand," continued Mrs. Green, "when I glance around among my friends, I've discovered that all the happily married couples I know are those who, because of creed or code or prejudice, dont believe in divorce—the ones who regard marriage as a life-sentence!"

"Married lifers!" exclaimed Mrs. Divot. "Come to think of it that would make a man and a woman think long and seriously before rushing to the altar."

"Exactly!" said Mrs. Green. "It makes them more cautious about choosing a life-partner, beforehand—and a lot more patient about adjusting themselves to each other and more anxious to preserve the entente cordiale, afterward! And, after all, that's all that it takes to make a successful marriage—choosing the right partner, and standing by!

"The trouble with most of these 'experimental' marriages is that they rush into and out of them, as though they were a revolving door. They don't give their marriage time to Jell! Whereas the 'lifers,' after the first few years of storm and stress and adjustment, seem to grow together, so that not even the law could pry them apart!"

"Funny!" said Mrs. Divot, "how we try all the new theories in love and medicine—and then get right back to grandmother's remedies and the kind of marriage that mother used to make!"

FORM ORGANIZATION FOR DISASTER RELIEF

Mrs. D. V. Gallagher and Capt. William E. Marks as vice chairmen, and B. B. Hane, chairman of finance, with O. E. Kennedy as vice chairman.

Although Marion has never been struck by a disaster, the probability and actuality of disasters is always at hand. This organization will be prepared to take care of not only relief from floods, tornadoes, etc., but also epidemics of fever and diseases.

There are no monetary returns for those named as chairmen or subchairmen of any committees, and their duties are only to have the subcommittees organized so that in case of any necessity for action at any time over the county there will be a definite organization ready and at hand to take care of the devastated area.

To Be Countywide

Chairmen of the committees will see to it in their appointments of subcommittees that the members embrace men and women from all points of the county.

Fred C. Spaulding, field representative of the Red Cross, has been in Marion several times to complete the appointment of the various chairmen, and will meet with them March 12, to further outline the work and the course of action to be taken in case the disaster and relief committee is called upon to function.

"If at any time, disaster or any other unusual emergency should strike the county, money is available from the National Red Cross chapter in Washington, and from chapters in the nearby counties and over the state.

Each committee chairman will have his subcommittee so organized that in several hours time the workers can go into the field of the needy, equipped to take care of the people and property.

It will be the duty of the chairmen to meet with their subcommittees twice or more a year, to see that everything is in order for prompt and efficient service in time of need.

Gets 30 Days in Jail from Columbus Judge for Asking Girl for Kiss, Then Getting Mad

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20—Roy C. Browning, 23, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and was given a suspended fine of $20 by Judge Harold Kime here today, because he asked for a kiss.

No, it was not the judge whom he asked for the osculation.

Naturally the damsel slapped his face.

Company officials ordered him out of the office, and, enraged because his request had been refused, Browning ripped a telephone from the wall. He testified that he had been somewhat provoked but knew "what I was doing."

Thank Goodness! He Exclaimed My Last Pound of Fat Is Gone

I Will Never Come Back While "That Kruschen Feeling" Lasts

A year ago I was 30 pounds overweight. I was fat and no one knew better than my own indolent self.

I was told of lots of drugging ways to get rid of it, but I would not risk my health for the sake of a few pounds.

To tell the truth I was getting so fat I didn't have much energy—and very little ambition.

Just then I heard so many good things about Kruschen Salts that I started to take them and never missed a morning.

Well! In a couple of weeks I commenced to feel like doing something and in six weeks I was as slim as I ever was in my life—that indolent feeling left me and has never come back.

"But that's not all! My energy is like a youth's—I get up in the morning thoroughly refreshed after a sound sleep and am ready and anxious to get to work.

"It's a great feeling, 'that Kruschen feeling,' seems as if I never get tired. I can walk for miles and enjoy every mile of it.

"That's how my fat left me—fat cannot exist long when a man's active, energetic, ambitious and full of joy of living. But I haven't stopped taking Kruschen Salts, not for one day. I would rather go without my breakfast than my Kruschen."

Kruschen is six salts—not just one—these salts act on stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and soon keep pure, fresh blood coursing thru the veins—a jar that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Bradley's Drug Store and druggists the world over. It's the little daily dose that does it. —Adv.

MEMORIAL PROGRAM HONORS PRESIDENTS

G. A. R. Auxiliary Pays Tribute to Washington, Lincoln and McKinley

A program in commemoration of the birthdays of Washington, Lincoln, and McKinley was given at a meeting of Cooper Relief Corps No. 191, Tuesday afternoon in the American Legion Depot.

Preceding the program, the resignation of Mrs. Myrtle Sparling as treasurer was read and accepted. Mrs. Sparling is leaving Marion soon. Mrs. Anita Pfeffer was elected to fill her office.

Commander Charles Wiley, of Cooper Post No. 117 G. A. R., in the course of the program gave a talk eulogizing the three presidents.

The program opened by singing, "America," followed by a reading by Mrs. Bertha Marlow, on Washington and Lincoln. A quartet, Mrs. Lulu Merchant, Mrs. Lola Kennedy, Mrs. Agnes Bower, and Mrs. Gertrude Mean, sang "Abide with Me," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Pfeffer. A reading on the life of Abraham Lincoln was given by Mrs. Lulu Merchant, followed by a reading on the life of McKinley by Mrs. Matilda Crissinger. The quartet sang, "Lead Kindly Light."

"The Fame of Washington," a reading, was given by Mrs. Maude Jacoby, followed by "The Lone Circuit," a recitation, by Mrs. Ethe L. Neal.

The program closed with the furling of the flags and singing "The Star Spangled Banner." The next meeting will be held March 4, at which time lunch will be served by Mrs. Alice Dundore's group.

"OTHERS FAILED, KONJOLA SCORED," SAYS HAPPY MAN

New Medicine Made Quick Work of Stomach and Kidney Troubles — Catarrh Relieved, Too

MR. WILLIAM LEMAY

"Other medicines failed, but Konjola scored another victory over my stubborn case," said Mr. William Lemay, 204 Oak Knoll drive, Dayton, Ohio. "For the past six years I was a victim of indigestion and kidney trouble. I could not eat a meal without suffering dreadfully afterward. Catarrh and eczema added greatly to my suffering. At my age, 78, I thought it was hopeless to seek health.

"So many disappointments had destroyed all my faith in medicines. Then I began hearing about Konjola and finally decided to try once more for relief. Konjola gave me the most unexpected surprise of my life. This medicine worked just as I was told it would do. My digestion was restored and my kidneys corrected. The Catarrhal condition has cleared up too. I have nothing but praise for Konjola for it restored my health."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stumm & Sams Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—you men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful, modern figure.

DAY OF PRAYER SET FOR CHURCHES HERE

Program of Union Service Arranged by Committee for March 7

The local World Day of Prayer committee met yesterday afternoon in First Presbyterian church and set Friday, March 7 aside as the day when the churches of the city will join in union prayer services. Mrs. S. C. Hare and Mrs. H. F. Weckmueller, both of First Reformed church, acted as chairman and secretary, pro tem.

Mrs. W. E. Coler, First United Brethren church, was elected chairman to serve next year, Mrs. M. L. Buckley, Central Christian church, vice chairman, and Mrs. Emil Sweney, Epworth M. E. church, secretary-treasurer.

This committee and any other church women who wish to attend meets once a year to set the date for the Day of Prayer.

"That Jesus May Be Lifted Up" will be the topic for the day. Mrs. Howard L. Olewiler, First Presbyterian church, will provide at the all-day meeting.

First Reformed, First United Brethren, First Presbyterian, Central Christian, Epworth M. E., and Calvary Evangelical churches were represented yesterday.

Standing of Teams in Class Contest Reported

The "Bring One, Brought One," attendance and membership campaign in the Rayl class of Trinity Baptist church, showed in the latest check-up that the side captained by Mrs. Jennie Shoots is 30 points ahead of the side of which T. J. Moon is leader. Last Sunday morning 68 calls were reported for the week.

Sunday morning E. O. Urcapher, regular teacher, will conduct a forum on the regular lesson study.

Manila business men have formed a company for the production of mechanical rubber goods from Philippine-grown rubber in that city.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" opened a meeting of Whetstone Grange No. 1959 at the grange hall southeast of the city Tuesday night. In the business meeting one application for membership was balloted upon.

The following recitations were given: "Washington", Ida Klingel; "Grandma's and Grandpa's", Elizabeth Rex; "States United", Ruth Lichtenberger; "Lincoln", Dorothy Klingel; "The Oak", Martha Lichtenberger; "Modern American Home", Kenneth Rex; "My Nicest Valentine", Raymond Lichtenberger; "Honor", Mary Ethel Rex; "Who Broke the Grange?" Ralph Klingel, and "The Life of Abraham Lincoln", by Arthur Wick. The grange will meet again Feb. 28.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Edison Optimistic, Says Business "Looking Good"

Famous Inventor Believes That Only Small Part of Country's Resources Are Being Utilized; Says Nation's Worst Trouble Is "Overdoing"

Editor's Note: Herewith is the first and final article of a series based on an interview with Thomas A. Edison. In the preceding articles he discussed several subjects. Today he discusses economics.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright 1930 by I. N. S.)

Business prospects seem "good" to him. Only a very small part of the country's vast resources are being utilized, he points out, "never before have times been better."

The famous inventor expressed these views today in an exclusive interview in his laboratory here where he has toiled hard at work on his scientific experiments. Because he especially dread the questions would be put to him in writing and not verbally, the interview lasted more than an hour. The 83-year-old man did not appear to be at all tired.

He said, among other things, that we have too many people in the "non-business" and he thought it would be a good idea if a lot of them went into the towns and took up manufacturing.

"Overdo" Too Much

"What do you think of the business outlook?" was one question put to the inventor of the electric light, the phonograph, the motion picture camera and numerous other devices.

"I think it will come out all right, Edison replied, optimistically. "Our only trouble is excess—overdoing things."

"Did we overdo in the speculating in stocks in Wall Street?"

"Yes, and we overdo in everything else."

"Does business need any one particular thing—more brains, more hard work, or what?" he was asked.

"More highly-organized brains," Edison answered promptly, adding: "Yet this country seems to have a large number of men with brains."

Resources Untoupched

"Have you ever seen the country in better shape than at present?"

"No, I never have."

"What per cent of America's vast resources are being used, in your opinion?"

"I should say five per cent," replied Edison after a pause.

The present "business era" in which we are living is helping the world very much, according to Edison, and he expressed the opinion that eventually machines will do away with man power. He said man power will be supplanted by steam power.

Edison suddenly launched into a discussion of the farm and the manufacturing situations, declaring:

"We have too many people in the farm business. We have THOUSANDS of farmers to feed in this country. The demand for things to fill that number of stomachs is necessarily limited. The farms, however, produce more than sufficient to fill these stomachs. The result is the farmer does not make a profit because he overgrows crops.

Sees Dry Law Permanent

"On the other hand, the demand for what the manufacturers produce is unlimited. Therefore more people should come off the farms and go into the towns and manufacture things that are in unlimited demand."

Edison is convinced, he said, that prohibition is here to stay. He thinks the laboring man should not expect to "have everything," especially alcohol which "befuddles his brain." He believes the dry law is helping the country, economically.

The aged inventor seemed to be very happy as he worked away at his bench in the low, green wooden laboratory on his estate. The shelves were lined with bottles such as you see in a drug store and men were busy filling and refilling vials with various kinds of fluid. Outside, among the rubber plants, men were busy eating lunch from pails which they had brought with them. Plants arrived daily from all parts of the country.

Goes to Work at 9

Edison goes to work each morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Edison, an attractive middle-aged woman with gray hair and luminous dark brown eyes, accompanies him from his home to the gate which leads across the roadway to the part of the estate where he has the laboratory. She always sends him to work with a word of cheer. Invariably there is a group of tourists waiting with cameras and they "snap" the famous inventor as, walking stick in hand, he slowly trudges across the street, through a gate which is always guarded and on to his beloved laboratory.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Bradley's Drug Store Makes This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Does Not Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

Why bother with slow acting remedies when one spoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, sourness, heaviness, heartburn or any other condition of the stomach to quickly vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or other stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only instantly relieves stomach distress, but also conquers stubborn indigestion and dyspepsia, and puts an end to sourness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting chronic stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that Bradley's Drug Store and druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.—Adv.

It took years to build a motor oil that could resist Ohio's quick-shifting weather . . . but here it is!

New SOHIO MOTOR OIL
free from harmful wax

LAST WINTER—and in all the winters before that—those fitful leaps and dips in Ohio's temperature played havoc with motor lubrication.

But, even then, Standard Oil of Ohio engineers were at work solving the baffling problem. And this winter they have ready for you a motor oil made especially to withstand Ohio's punishing, ever-changing weather. It is called New Sohio Motor Oil and it is notable for its sturdy flexibility—its ability to perform just as well in cold weather as in hot.

Zero cold doesn't put New Sohio out of commission. Intense engine heat doesn't break down that smooth protecting film between moving parts. An oilier oil—a longer-lasting oil—a 100% paraffin base oil from which the harmful wax has been removed at 50° below zero.

Easier starting—less drain on battery.
Less need for slow warming up.
Full, smooth power—unfailing piston seal.
Reduced carbon formation.
Less wear on moving parts.

All the cities of New York state are reported to be fighting the repeal of that state's daylight-saving law. Golf has certainly secured a strangle hold on the cities of the Empire state.

We very gravely fear that the city of Washington is not entirely free from the moisture from which it is held to suffer. Anyway, a seventy-five-year-old man was arrested there, a night or two ago, for singing "Sweet Adeline."

Mildred Harris, former wife of Charlie Chaplin, has secured a divorce from her second husband. Charlie maintained at the time of his domestic troubles that Mildred was a bit temperamental.

The New York City board of estimates has notified Commissioner of Police Whalen that he must make walking safe or he will get no estimate for the $795,000 asked by him to cover the cost of extending the city's traffic control system. It's hardly probable that that city's system will be extended in the very near future.

Possibly we of America were the more ready to credit the tale that Mr. Coolidge was to write a 500-word history of the United States to be perpetuated in stone owing to the rather general conviction that, if any man could accomplish that feat, he was the man.

Automobile manufacturers are planning to expend $15,000,000 this year in the junking of old cars to make motoring safer, but this will not estop them, of course, from replacing them with new cars should opportunity offer.

Peggy Joyce says she has "never known a husband to wear longer than six months." If Peggy wants to make the reading public sit up and take notice, she should point out one of hers who wore that long.

The "Disraeli" of George Arliss recalls the story of the young man who refused his hostess' strawberries, holding that they would ruin his taste for his customary prunes. What a gap between the artistry of Arliss and the commonplace of the average talkie film!

Maybe that magazine fiction writer who was caught trying to get away with a $50,000 tray of diamond rings was simply seeking material for one real confession story.

Congress may heed President Hoover's urge to speed action on the tariff bill, but first it proposes to kill a little time just to protest that it will not do anything of the kind, kind.

An Akron aviator, Lee Schoenhair, this week established a new world record by flying a passenger plane carrying a 500-kilogram load over a 100-mile course at the rate of approximately 158½ miles an hour, besting the former record held by the French pilot, Fernand Lasne, by eleven miles. It's the exceptional week which doesn't mark the crashing of some world air record.

Corruption of City Government.

Added light on the conditions which resulted in placing the city of Chicago in the unfortunate financial situation she occupies today is had in a petition filed up there by an assistant state's attorney in which it is charged that the head of one of the city's firms of contractors expended over a million dollars for gifts to various officials—lavish presents costing as much as $1,000 each ranging from artistic pieces of silverware to household furniture.

The firm headed by this bountiful giver of gifts to those connected with the city government in various capacities, it is pointed out, has been the recipient of many very favorable contracts, one of which was for the installation of lamps on one of the city's avenues at an average cost to the city's taxpayers of $1,000 each.

If one corporation expended a vast sum, as charged, for the corruption of officials, the conclusion is almost forced that bribery was the rule rather than the exception. And if one concern could afford to pay out $1,000,000 for easing the way to the securing of city contracts, the extent to which the people of Chicago have been outraged financially can only be conjectured. Certainly the sum total of graft must be vast.

And there is another phase of the matter, and it too is a most distressing one. If the facts are as charged, it is hardly probable that they did not come to the knowledge of the criminal world up there, which, it is has been demonstrated, was not without connections with the political and official, encouraging it to excesses beyond the ordinary. There is nothing which works to give the underworld more encouragement in the commission of crime than the knowledge that there is crookedness and corruption in the fabric of city government. It feels comparatively safe in such a situation, relying on official knowledge of its knowledge of official corruption to serve to protecting it from adequate punishment for its crimes.

Danger in Business Pessimism.

There can be little doubt that the present depression from which the country has recently been suffering, and from which the students of business tell us we are now emerging, resulted from a psychological condition, and it would not be an overdrawn matter to make out a case against the business interests themselves as being largely responsible for that condition.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the great majority of the commercial interests of the land realized big profits during the orgy of buying which obtained during our participation in the World war and for a year or two, possibly three, following it. This will be denied in some quarters, of course but we believe it is now accepted as a fairly well-established fact.

Then came the readjustment period. There was a readjustment of business conditions, but, in the main, there was not a readjustment of the business mind. The fact that there was an ultimate falling-off in returns from business from those which were realized during the war and post-war periods mentioned was not accepted as the inevitable result of readjustment, but business interests were inclined to take the view that they were losing ground. The comparison of returns of business today with those which were the rule during and following the war, instead of comparisons with pre-war profits, is still a source of discontent in the business mind—the cause of a feeling of depression which, unfortunately, many business interests fail to combat and still more unfortunately fail to conceal. The business interests which permit themselves to suffer from a feeling of depression and talk about it to the public, simply pass along their feeling of depression and create a psychological condition in the public mind which harms the public as well as themselves, for the wheels do not turn merrily when there is lack of confidence in the present and distrust in the future. There is a result of falling-off in business all the way around.

Business economists will hold that business can not be augmented by eternally talking about lack of it. Optimism, unless carried to an unreasonable degree, is a better business builder than pessimism. And it may be said in this connection that it is a singular fact, but a fact just the same, that the average man engaged in a legitimate business lacks the resiliency of mind and heart found in the man who engages in enterprises of chance. The former, as a rule, fears that conditions will take a turn for the worse, the latter always has a feeling that there will be a change for the better. There is danger in too close adhesion to either of those views, but surely the danger of losing through too much optimism is no greater than the danger of killing business through pessimism.

"The Man in the Green Hat," suspected of affording relief to thirsty throats in the senate office building, has again been placed under arrest. Haven't the dry law agents down there any respect whatever for the feelings of the drys afflicted with wet tastes?

Pretty Cheap Stuff.

The Chicago Tribune, which is not overly friendly to the Hoover administration, prints a Washington special in which it is held that the United States will lose $136,366 as the result of the use of the Lexington in supplying electric current to Tacoma for thirty days when that city's electric power plant broke down, as it is planned to charge the city but $75,610. It reaches this conclusion by computing for the thirty-day period the interest on the cost of the carrier, the pay and maintenance of its officers and crew, the cost of material used and depreciation, all of which would have gone on just the same, to have amounted to half a million dollars. Pretty cheap stuff, that!

"The more beautiful a woman," says Mrs. Ethel Mannin, "the more likely she is to meet all the wrong men." Have a heart, Ethel! We married men must either deny the pulchritude of our better halves or admit we're the wrong ones. You're unfair!

A rum-running plane seized down in Zanesville and its pilot placed under arrest, the second case of the kind within ten days. Rum-running by air is not proving so much of a snap as those who visioned fortunes out of it imagined.

Mei Lan-Fang, the wonderful Chinese pantomimist, and his company of actors from Peking have been delighting New York City audiences with the exquisite art and loveliness of their performances. Again we have attestation of the fact that art knows not geography, race or color.

Such is the degree of stagnation which obtains in the diamond market, a Cape Town cable tells us, that the African diamond trade faces ruin. It's evident that those who profited by the losses of the suckers who bought stocks on margins and got caught in the Wall Street crash are not the kind of people given to the wearing of jewelry other than, or they had previously supplied their wants.

The department of commerce has announced the receipt of reports from 411 automobile financing concerns which shows that 3,441,629 cars were financed by them in 1929 with an advance of $1,558,819,550. The same concerns reported having financed 1,340,369 cars with an advance of $709,573,218 during the last six months of 1929 against 1,120,679 cars with an advance of $547,038,792 during the corresponding period in 1928. Every day, in the financing way, more people are owing money on their cars.

A dispatch from Mexico, relating how the pistols of all civilians down there without permits are being confiscated by the government, goes on to say that all permits are to be recalled as soon as President Rubio recovers from the recent attempt to assassinate him, and that "even congressmen will lose their permits." In the present condition of some of our federal lawmakers, it might be the course of wisdom to take similar action up here, assuming, of course, that permits have been issued to them.

ANOTHER ANXIOUS SEAT.

Overcome Handicap of Defects.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is a sad fact that many little children suffer from deformities of one kind and another. They are of a more or less serious nature, of course. But it is our duty to find preventive measures and the public must be educated to the possibilities of lessening the large numbers of cripples in our midst.

Much can be done and is being done to help these unfortunates. The most important work lies in preventing deformities among children.

Hospitals are built for crippled children and are doing a wonderful work in overcoming deformities. A list of the measures used in this line of work shows the wonderful advance science has made for the benefit of the cripple.

There are several classes of crippled children: First, there are the children who are born with some deformity. This may be a clubfoot or hand. It may be a harelip or cleft palate. It may be a dislocation of a bone.

If these defects can be taken at once after birth, in a large majority of cases they are easily corrected. Every mother of a little crippled child should know this.

Another cause of children's deformities is rickets. This is a disease caused by undernourishment. The child has insufficient lime in his food to supply the bones. He may not be getting enough sunlight to create the physical machinery that supplies the lime.

Tuberculosis of the bone is another cause for deformities in children. It, too, is associated with lack of sunshine and is prompted by unhygienic living.

Milk from tuberculor cows will carry this disease to the human being. Either pasteurized or certified milk should be given children. Good food and sunshine go far towards the prevention of this disease.

Infantile paralysis adds to the crippled list. About forty per cent, come from this cause. Deformity from this disease can be prevented or greatly lessened if taken in time. Rest, good food, and the best of care are needed.

Accidents to children of school age are increasing at an alarming rate. Safety-first principles are being taught everywhere. Heed must be given to all preventive measures to save children from accident and death, from bodily suffering and mental anguish. Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE DEATH PENALTY COMES BACK.

The increase of serious crime in Italy has brought out a new penal code that restores capital punishment for murder, which was abolished in 1888, and declares that conditions of emotion or passion are of no avail in diminishing the guilt of the accused. "Thus," says an explanatory dispatch from Rome, "the code specifically refuses to sanction Italy's traditional plea of the unwritten law when a husband kills an unfaithful wife or her lover or both." Crimes of passion have been common in Italy—"those warps in clime are warm in blood;" and for that reason this outlawing of the unwritten law is as noteworthy as the revival of the death penalty.

The return of Italy to the capital punishment column derives additional significance from the fact that it was in Italy that the earliest and most vigorous opposition to the lex talionis arose. Cesare Beccaria, a noble and an idealist, whose life spanned the greater part of the eighteenth centuries, wrote prolifically against the death penalty; in 1786, Tuscany, under the influence of his writings, abolished it. A century later capital punishment was abolished throughout Italy even for regicide. The forty odd years that have elapsed have given life imprisonment a fair trial. The verdict of the fascist government, which, whatever its attitude may be toward personal liberties, at least stands for law and order and is working to make Italy a safer place to live in, condemns it. A life for a life seems to be the only way of saving the country from a reign of murder.

Are Americans to remain blind to the lesson that Italy has learned from a welter of crime and bloodshed? The homicide rate that has driven Italy to this step is far below that of the United States, which our sob-sisters continue to condone and the great mass of the people to regard with complacency. The majority of our states have capital punishment on their books; but their failure to enforce it has left this country in much the same position in which Italy was placed, when she did away with the death penalty. She will now give that penalty a fair trial, which we have not as yet done. Are we going to muddle on to chaos, without capital punishment in some states, while prescribing it in others, without making the murderer take it?—Detroit Free Press.

TIME-EATERS.

Friday's score in the senate tariff game was: Coalitionists, five; Regular Republicans, three. One envies the professional enthusiasm and heat which the players were able to summon up. Even the galleries were deceived; thought they were looking at a real fight and cheered or booed so that the vice president had to give them a public admonition. Only innocent strangers in Washington can have taken the show seriously. The country has long since been sick of it. Spartan patriots, hot against beneficiaries of the unholy tariff until their own ewe lambs are fed up for a bounty, are not impressive. And what is the spirit of these renewed efforts to cut down existing tariff rates?

The justice or injustice of such reduction is not in question. It is difficult to ascribe good faith to senators who make these proposals. Is there not contentious matter enough in the senate bill without piling on more? Do these friends of the people, when the interests of their several states don't forbid, want a tariff bill passed? If they do, they have a queer way of showing their desire. The country has wabbled and broken so often that its debates or victories have come to be little more momentous than its curious occasional gestures toward general revision. The hybrid combination is not a bit less "selfish" than its opponents. With the loftiest pretensions it is essentially devoted to rather clumsy political showmanship.

Professional dates continue to be set for the passage of the senate bill and composition of the differences between house and senate. Some sons of hope are even dreaming of making the United States happier by adjourning in June. Let us not be too much encouraged. There is no joy but talk, and time was made for senators.—New York Times.

Cosmic Proportions.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

After a certain stage of maturity is reached, a man's thoughts and actions are conditioned, not on the past, but the future. He begins to wonder how much time he has to live, and people and things take on a new value with reference to that span of life.

A subject of perennial and ever-recurring interest and conjecture is the duration of human life. What is the probable future of the human race, and what relation does the past of the human race, in time, bear to the probable future of the earth?

It is probable that man has existed upon the earth some 500,000 years, and this is believed to be only about one-ten-thousandth of the total age of the earth. It would appear, from all available evidence that man's future life on earth will be far longer than the time he has already lived. In the course of time, the natural deposits of minerals and the present immense stores of coal and oil will all be exhausted; and man will have to tap new sources of light, heat and energy—whether from the sun or the interior of the earth. By almost infinitesimal gradations, the year will grow longer, and as the sun decreases in size and gives off less heat, the earth will gradually grow colder.

As compared to the probable future life of the race upon earth, man is in the state of an infant in development. During the past century or less, this wonderful baby has begun to look out upon the entire universe, and try to fathom its secrets. Judging by the enormous enlargement of the domain of human knowledge in the past century, the potentialities of the human race are rich and brilliant beyond all computation or prophecy.

With each new and larger telescope which is constructed, man is able to look ever deeper into the great interstellar spaces. More and more stars are "discovered"—seen for the first time—new planets, nebular island universes, globular clusters, swim into the ken of our vision. The question naturally arises: Is this process destined to go on indefinitely? Is there no end to the expansion of the limits of the visible universe?

If the theories of Einstein and De Sitter prove well-founded, we are already beginning to reach some comprehension of the probable dimensions of the universe. Recent discoveries of bodies moving at enormous velocities at almost incalculable distances away indicate that these bodies are not going straight away from us, but are beginning to swing around and begin the long voyage of return. If space has ever so slight a curvature, and we can discover the amount of that curvature, we shall be able to compute how large the universe really is.

For example, Hubble has recently made a series of calculations, indicating that space does not extend to more than "about a thousand times as far as the farthest nebula visible in the biggest telescope. A ray of light would take about 100,000,000,000 years to travel around a universe of this size.

In his little book, "Eos," Jeans says: "Suppose the size of our earth represented by a single atom, whose diameter is about a hundred-millionth part of an inch. Then the range of vision of the biggest telescope is about represented by the whole earth, and the size of the whole universe, according to the theory of relativity, is represented by a stack of a thousand million earths."—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Feb. 20—It is possible some winter night to bring the festivity of Monte Carlo into your home merely telephone and does the trick. An advertiser at an address on west Seventy-first street is prepared to transmute his living quarters into a gambling casino.

He appears to have no compunction about the legality of such entertainment for a somewhat engraved announcement which he sends out indiscriminately he gives his name, address and telephone number. On the streets are bright windows of crowds playing roulette, piquet, chuck-a-luck and craps.

We quote from his announcement: "I may arrange an evening of unusual interest for your friends by transplanting to your home or club the attractions of the famous casinos of the world. This can be expertly managed, without inconvenience to you, at fairly short notice.

"I am prepared to provide you with equipment and operators comparing favorably with the best here and abroad and perhaps superior. If the games are banked with me in part by you or through cooperation of guests, I will participate to any extent you desire."

It is said he shows no interest in a booking coming from any save "class addresses." He wants only people who will gamble. Those who have seen his paraphernalia declare it magnificent and his croupiers suave and big-tipped old-world types.

The chief game-keeper—an Adonis in evening clothes—is reported to be a famous side man in the days when Canfields and Ashed. The gambling outfit is delivered in several compactly filled trunks and in a few hours everything is ready for a night of play.

* * *

There are still many gamblers of other days knocking about the Tenderloin and in strong contrast to the oily and over-confident modern types. They have a silver-haired dignity and the urbanity of a Chesterfield. Some of them have seen their better days and are off the precarious fruits of small stakes poker and dice games or serve as house players in billiard halls. No matter how seedy their dress there is always a gaudy "gem" about to distinguish them—a huge cameo, a fancy vest or a huge and glittering diamond ring.

The professional gambler is rarely able to escape a nickname among his guild. And these are usually picturesque. Among the best known are Silent Holcombe, Wee Willie Hanlon, Peaches, Nigger Nate, Happy Hal and Whistling Tim.

One of the most pathetic sights we have seen lately—we say to ourself in a looking glass—was a 200-pound gentleman in a great coat trying to coax along a tiny Pomeranian attached to a red ribbon while a group of young debutantes, waiting for limousines in front of Pierres, tittered.

* * *

Nothing is so disconcerting to a man's vanity as the sudden giggle of a pretty girl. Whatever concept he fosters vanishes in a flash. He imagines everything that is the matter with him, including, perhaps, a slightly bowed legs, has suddenly become as public as a statue in the park.

One of the best of the recent paragraphs to my notion is by W. W. Scott, who observed: "New Yorkers will stand for anything save a woman in the subway."

* * *

Such obvious paragraphs are most elusive of all for wit-wits who must think them out. A fellow never reads a homely reflection like Abe Martin without a reminder he has often observed the same thing.

They were wondering about a very homely some actor who takes his very unattractive wife with him wherever he goes. "May be," some one suggested, "it is because he likes to kiss her good-bye."

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Prehistoric men lived in fear of a world which they did not understand. They looked upon the lightning, trembled before the thunder, marveled at the moon, and did not know what anything was all about. Modern man has discovered a few things. He has less fear of nature and the elements. If he thinks at all he fears the civilization which he has created. He wonders whether he knows what to do with it. He wonders where it is taking him.

* * *

It seems that man is respected in terms of the property which he has gathered together. The race for wealth has nearly set the world crazy. Harold Laski, writing in Harper's magazine, says:

"Our universities naturally choose wealthy men as their governors; our churches rarely have difficulty in making terms with the millionaires whose old age is infected with religiosity. The theater, the arts, literature prostrate themselves eagerly before the demands of those with money to spend. The whole temper of our civilization, in fact, is poisoned by the triumphant position of wealthy men. They have no standards except consumption, as Mr. Veblen has so amply proved, save that of conspicuous waste; and the structure scheme of social values is made to be adjusted to their incredible wants.

"The visitor to Newport or Monte Carlo or to Palm Beach or Cannes, the observer who scrutinizes the social columns of a London newspaper, the critic who watches the disposterous competition between those who collect rare books and pictures—these will think, find it difficult not to conclude that this world is, in fact, the lunatic asylum of the planets."

If one were asked to name the most important thing in the world, the answer would not be as hard to find as we might at first believe. Thought is the most important thing in the world. Thoughts, persisted in, discharge into action. Thoughts are unbreakable habits. They have the terrible pulling power of a deadly habit. We praise deeds, but deeds are only the servants of thought. Beware of what you think. It makes or breaks you. Thoughts can make you miserable. Right thoughts can make you content.

* * *

Some modern so-called philosophers would teach us that unhappiness comes from resisting our impulses. Young people get the idea that they develop best by giving free rein to impulse, by doing what they desire to do.

Are we to forget that from the pioneers who turn the forest into fertile acres and build homes, everything that is worth while has been built up by active effort. Resistance produces power.

Horst Case Solution

between an Akron liquor ring and Marshal Roy Horst, uncle of the murdered lad. Tressko and La Fatch are reputed members of the liquor ring and they are accused of having instigated the youth's murder in reprisal for Marshal Horst's activities against the liquor ring.

Junior Brought Melvin

Hannah declared that he and Earl Conald, whom he exonerated of all blame in the killing, drove Conald's automobile to Akron the morning of Dec. 27, 1928. They saw La Fatch at Akron, and agreed to have the Horst boy at the garage on the property of Frank Frye in Orrville, where Conald stored his automobile.

Hannah declared that his son, Junior, 10, brought Melvin Horst to the garage at the designated time. Hannah admitted that he struck the lad over the head with a heavy plank, wrapped the body in an old burlap sack, and placed it in La Fatch's automobile.

He said La Fatch and Nesko drove off, and declared that he has never seen the boy or his body since. He does not know positively whether the boy is dead, although he admitted that he has talked to La Fatch several times since that night.

Hannah said that Arthur Arnold had agreed to be at the garage, but added that he arrived there after La Fatch and Nesko had driven away. He had been detained and was unable to get there at the scheduled time, Hannah said in his confession.

Checks Are Found

Officials pointed out that during the trial of Arthur and his father, Elias Arnold, who were charged with child-stealing, in connection with the Melvin Horst case, that they found a large number of canceled checks at the Arnold home, which were made payable to Tony LaFatch. These checks, it is believed, were in payment for liquor which the Arnolds had received from the alleged Akron bootlegger.

The finding of the checks substantiates Hannah's statement that the Arnolds were bootleg agents of LaFatch, officials said.

That LaFatch thought Melvin Horst was the son of Marshal Roy Horst, was included in Hannah's final confession, which, it is believed will clear up one of the most gruesome and brutal murders in the history of Ohio.

Expect Other Arrests

The fact that Melvin Horst was murdered as the result of a liquor feud was brought out by officials at the first of the new investigation a week ago, when it was thought that Earl Conald may have been implicated in the murder. Officials repudiated this belief later, however, when they declared that Conald's alleged liquor operations were conducted on too small a scale.

Officials said they did not contemplate any charges against the Arnolds at present, at least.

Additional arrests are expected in the case, which is proving to be one of the most sensational in Ohio, but officials refused to divulge any of their immediate plans.

Hannah exonerated Earl Conald of all blame in connection with the murder and took full responsibility for the boy's disappearance on the night of Dec. 27, 1928.

Although Hannah absolved Conald of all blame in the killing, he said in his confession that he had hoped to place the blame on Conald.

He admitted threatening Conald several times and told him he wanted him to "keep his mouth shut about the affair." In a previous signed statement, Hannah accused Conald of doing the killing.

That both Mrs. Hannah and Junior knew about the slaying of Melvin, was revealed. Hannah said that he became worried and had to tell his wife. He told Junior about it, later, and instructed him to put the blame on Arthur Arnold.

Hannah Falls Asleep

Officials hope to find the body of Orrville's "Little Boy Blue" so that murder charges can be filed, but they said that, if necessary, they will hold Hannah on charges of child-stealing and perjury.

Hannah suffered a collapse after signing his latest confession, his fifth within a week, and fell asleep for the first time in nearly 30 hours.

Hannah confessed after more than 30 hours of grueling, nerve-wrecking grilling, that he killed 4-year-old Melvin Horst at Orrville, Dec. 27, 1928.

The confession, which was briefly announced by Detective Ora Slater, special investigator, closely followed a visit which was made to Hannah by his wife and 10-year-old son, Junior.

Slater Reveals Confession

Despite the confession, the 14-month-old mysterious disappearance of the Orrville youngster still was shrouded in secrecy today. Slater barely announced that Hannah had confessed, refusing to divulge any details. Nor would he announce what the next move on the part of authorities would be. The confession was given out by Slater at 9 o'clock last night, nearly three hours after Hannah had "broken."

Hannah, with Earl Conald, had been held for investigation, for about a week. Each had accused the other of killing Melvin. Once when the two men were being simultaneously grilled, charges were bitterly exchanged, and it was necessary for officers to restrain the two accused men from an actual fist fight.

Before Hannah "cracked" he is ... illness of two years.

NAMES CONFUSING IN HANNAH CASE

WOOSTER, Feb. 20—Names in the news stories of today and in the signed confession of Charles Hannah, relating to the Melvin Horst murder mystery, are confusing.

HANNAH TELLS LAST STORY OF MURDER

Says He Hit Horst Boy on Head, Placed Body in Car

David Yonts, the Arnolds, Joe Noreman and Growers. That is all I know of.

Q.—Did you choke Melvin?

A.—No, I just hit him with a two-by-four.

Q.—Why did you tell before that he was choked?

A.—I wanted to shield myself.

Q.—Did Earl Conald have any part in it?

A.—No, sir. I did it. I didn't think I hit the boy as hard as I did.

Q.—Who got you to kill this boy?

A.—The Arnolds had something to do with it. That is Arthur Arnold. He and I made the arrangements through Junior. I did the planning myself. I had Junior bring him up there.

A.—Arthur was to get in on it but he wasn't because he was not there soon enough. The only reason that Arthur did not help to do this job was because he did not arrive soon enough to Conald's garage.

A.—No.

Q.—He knew the arrangements, didn't he?

A.—He might have through Arthur but not through me.

Q.—You didn't have any contact through Nels Arnold and Bascom McHenry?

A.—No.

Q.—How did you know these Italians mentioned before were going to be there?

A.—That was the arrangements.

Q.—Was this Tony Noresko (LaFarch) and Charles Tressko there in their car when Junior brought the boy, Melvin Horst up to the garage?

A.—After Junior brought the boy they were.

Placed Body in Sack

Q.—What did you do with Melvin after you hit him?

A.—I put him in a sack.

Q.—Did he bleed any?

A.—Not to amount to anything. I didn't have any blood on me.

Q.—Was he actually dead when you put him in the car?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—Did he fall down when you hit him?

A.—Yes, he dropped down.

Q.—In Conald's statement he said you said, "Oh, my God, I have killed this boy." Did you say that?

A.—I didn't say I killed him, I said I hit this boy.

Q.—Did Conald help to put him in the car or did he run away from the garage?

A.—He ran away from the garage.

Q.—Did he know you killed him?

A.—I don't know.

Q.—What arrangements had been made?

Sent Junior After Him

A.—When he went up to Akron to get the whisky, I made the arrangements there and I didn't tell Conald anything about it.

Q.—Did you tell Junior, your son, to go out and get Melvin Horst and bring him over to your home?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go to the door of the garage and meet Junior and Melvin?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell Junior "Your job is done?"

A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Were the lights of Conald's car lit?

Q.—Was it real dark outside?

Q.—What did these boys, the Italians, say they were going to do with the boy?

A.—I don't know.

Akron Men Get Body

Q.—What was that arrangement that you made in Akron?

A.—They were to dispose of the body after I delivered it to them.

Q.—Was the arrangement that they receive the boy dead at the garage?

A.—Either dead or alive. Just as it could be handled.

Q.—Where did you and Arthur make this arrangement?

A.—I met him one day, close to his house, and Arthur told me where to go to make arrangements at Akron.

Q.—Did you say that the old man told you to do it?

A.—There wasn't any arrangements made by the old man at all.

Q.—Was the arrangement made near the harness factory?

A.—Yes, on McGill st.

Q.—What was the motive?

Grudge Against Horsts

A.—I guess it was just a grudge that I and the Arnolds had against the Horsts. That is against Roy Horst.

Q.—At that time did you know whose boy it was?

Q.—Why did you have it in for Roy Horst?

A.—Because he kept watching me and the Arnolds in the bootlegging business.

A.—I don't think he did.

Q.—Was Earl Conald in the garage when you killed this boy?

A.—Yes he was in the front of the car.

Q.—Now who put the boy in the car?

A.—I did.

Q.—Would anything prevent Earl Conald from seeing this and hearing this?

A.—He might have heard for all I know.

Q.—After you hit the boy was Earl Conald in the garage when you were putting him in the sack?

Conald Ran Home

A.—No, he ran out and went up to his home.

Q.—Did he go to your home afterward?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go out and search that night?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you out until 3 o'clock in the morning?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you with Bill Sewell that night?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And what he says about you is the truth

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you tell your wife after it happened?

A.—She knew I was worrying and I finally told her.

Q.—Junior knew what happened, said he?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you talk to Junior about this after it happened and that he should not tell?

A.—I said he shouldn't tell on me and that he should tell on Arthur. I said he should put it on Arthur.

Q.—Did Arthur Arnold have anything to do with the killing?

A.—No.

Q.—Had you planned to kill the child?

A.—No, I just planned to stun him, give him to these fellows and they were going to finish the job.A

Q.—Then when you blamed Earl Conald for the killing and shielded the Arnolds in your first statement, both of these facts were untrue?

A.—Yes.

Q.—So that the true situation is that Conald did not kill the boy and that you did kill the boy and that Arthur Arnold had planned the matter with you two or three days before on McGill st. at the harness factory?

A.—Yes.

Q.—After the boy was delivered to Tony Noresko and the other Italian did you ever have any conversation with them?

A.—I went there several times after that.

Q.—Did they ever tell you what they did with the boy?

A.—They never mentioned it.

Q.—Did they mention whether he was dead or if they had to kill him?

A.—No

Q.—Did they give you money or whisky for delivering the boy?

A.—They were to give me 25 gallons of whisky for delivering the boy.

Q.—Did you think the boy was killed?

A.—I couldn't say for sure to that.

Q.—The motive was that you thought and the Arnolds thought that the boy was the son of Roy Horst, the marshal, and that he was arresting the Arnolds and watching them on liquor selling and also watching you on liquor selling?

A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you feared sooner or later he would get either you or the Arnolds and that Tony Noresko and the other Italian you mentioned above were selling you liquor and the Arnolds liquor and some other people in Orrville liquor and it would hinder his business, is that right?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Why did Dorothy McHenry tell Prosecutor Graven, Special Prosecutor Mongey and myself (Slater) that she suspected Tony Noresko if the Arnolds were not in on it?

A.—No answer.

Q.—Did you ever tell any person that Maxcom McHenry was the party that was in on this murder?

A.—No.

Q.—Was Arthur supposed to be there at the garage at this particular time?

A.—He was to be there at about 6 o'clock and I had arranged with these people in Akron to be there about 6 o'clock.

Q.—Had you sent Junior out to get Melvin Horst and to bring him to your home before Earl Conald came to your home that evening?

A.—I don't remember.

Q.—And did Junior bring the boy to your house while Earl Conald was there?

A.—Yes sir.

Q.—Where did Junior keep the boy until you were ready to go to the garage?

A.—He was there perhaps a minute and Junior played with him in the back yard.

Q.—Did you ever threaten Earl Conald that if he told on you you would put him in on this killing?

A.—Yes.

Q.—And what did you say to him?

A.—I told him I wanted him to keep his mouth shut.

Q.—Did you say what you would do to him if he would tell?

A.—I don't know what I said but I threatened him.

Q.—Did you say anything to him that these two Italians would watch him?

A.—Yes I told him that these Italians would watch him.

Q.—So Charles, if what you say is the truth both your wife and Junior knew what you have done?

A.—Yes they knew I arranged it on purpose to have it done at Conald's garage so that I could throw the blame on him if it was found out later.

Q.—Did Junior know that you killed the boy?

A.—I do not know whether Junior knew at the time what had been done but I told him afterward and warned him to say nothing about me. I started to tell the story on Earl Conald and I couldn't continue as it choked me and I had to change my story and I don't want him in the picture at all because he is innocent.

Q.—Did Conald ever talk to you about it and ask you why you did it?

A.—The only thing that I ever told him was that I didn't mean to kill the boy, but I was pretty drunk and so was he. The reason that I did not want to tell what became of the boy and why I made several stories as to that, was the fear that I had of these two Italians who got the boy, and I know they had been on the roof perch or garden of my home at Wadsworth from the description of these men given to me by my wife and daughter, Mrs. Stoll, and when I told about being in fear of my life and Junior's life that is the truth, although I denied it to you before. I bought liquor from these two Italians and they brought a lot of liquor to my house at different times for a period of six or seven months. When I talked the matter over with Arthur Arnold at the harness factory we both thought this little Horst boy, Melvin Horst, was the son of Roy Horst the marshal of the village of Orrville and I told Junior that afternoon to go out and search for him and bring him to our house saying to him: Go get that little Horst boy. So that Junior only had the information to bring him to my home. When he brought him to my home I told Junior that I wanted him to take him to Conald's garage and follow us in the car and I told Junior that I would give him something or get him a new suit of clothes. I had made arrangements with Tony Noresko that securing that for doing this job I was to get 25 gallons of whisky.

I believe it was 10 gallons that I received. The arrangements were that I was to strike him by hitting him over the head and to bring him in their car which was to be at Conald's garage, and after Junior brought the boy to the garage I hit him over the side of the head with a two by four scantling about 2½ feet long and I then put him in the sack that I had carried up from my home under my coat. I had gotten the sack in my cellar and told my wife I was going to Earl Conald's garage but I didn't get the whisky until the next day.

The statement that I made in regard to Earl Conald paying for half of this whisky was not true. I paid for it all with my own money and Earl did not pay for any at all. I was out to the bowling game with Earl Conald but bootlegged by myself but Earl Conald was a good customer of mine and sometimes would take a few bottles out for his friends and returned the money to me.

I want to further say that Earl Conald did not have anything to do or have any knowledge of the matter until it was done, and that I framed this and threatened him not to tell on the black hand matter and he did fear for his life.

Earl Conald was always a good friend of mine and I know that when I was on the railroad for eight or 10 years and I went to him square with them recommending either that the line be abandoned or that $20,000 be expended in its repair.

The present critical situation was brought to a head when Bucyrus council, planning to rebuild Marion st. from the south corporation line of that city north to Poplar st., demanded that the railway company rebuild the pavement between and on either side of its tracks, which lie on a seven-foot right-of-way in the center of the street.

Failure to act led the council to threaten to rescind the franchise of the company, and to rebuild the entire street at the expense of the city, omitting the interurban tracks.

According to Mayor Arthur Schuler, of Bucyrus, the issue will be forced within 30 days, and the company must either relinquish its right of way or forfeit its franchise.

Two Near Death After 'Liquor Party' Shooting

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Feb. 20 — William Greer, a former merchant of Jonancy, Ky., and Mrs. Mary Hurk Wolfe, also of Jonancy, are in a critical condition at Methodist hospital here today as the result of bullet wounds which were inflicted in a hotel room here last night.

Officials declare that Greer shot the woman during a "liquor party," and was in turn shot by the woman's son, "Goosby" Lyons, in a scuffle for possession of the weapon. Lyons is being held in jail.

The mother has a wound just above the heart, and her condition is "extremely grave," according to hospital physicians.

It is not pleasant for the law abiding citizen, in several states forbidden to own a pistol, to read that in the past year, as shown by government figures, the sale of deadly weapons is three times as great as in the preceding year.

SAYS C., M. & B. LINE SURE TO KEEP GOING

Whysall Confident Interurban Problems Will Be Solved Satisfactorily

"The line will not be abandoned," was the statement made this morning to a representative of The Star by George Whysall, president of the Columbus, Marion & Bucyrus Railway Co., speaking with reference to the interurban line between Bucyrus and this city.

Asked how the Bucyrus situation would be handled, Mr. Whysall said he did not know. He further added that he had received no reply from eastern bondholders of the company to a letter he is said to have sent them recommending either that the line be abandoned or that $20,000 be expended in its repair.

The present critical situation was brought to a head when Bucyrus council, planning to rebuild Marion st. from the south corporation line of that city north to Poplar st., demanded that the railway company rebuild the pavement between and on either side of its tracks, which lie on a seven-foot right-of-way in the center of the street.

This discussion, which was expected to draw fire from Ohio Chamber of Commerce and industrial commission officials present, turned into a love feast when mutual discussion indicated that both groups were working toward the same end. Frank B. McMillan, president of the Ohio Chamber, stated that the investigation was for the enlightenment of Chamber members who were not members of any manufacturers' association. All the information gathered, he stated, would be placed at the disposal of the Ohio Manufacturers' association.

Chairman Speaks

Wellington T. Leonard, chairman of the industrial commission, spoke on the operation of the commission in regard to the payment of workmen's compensation claims. Leonard stated that industrial commission premiums paid by Ohio employers were lower than in most states. He also stated that compensation for disabled workmen and death claims paid in Ohio were higher than in many states.

The next meeting of the Central Ohio Manufacturers' association will be held in Bucyrus April 2.

If you are NOT yourself

Are you being denied the happiness that is due you in life?

S.S.S. Makes You Feel Like Yourself Again

IT is easy to abuse our golden life-given body, but Nature has a way of signaling danger. If heeded, graver troubles may be avoided. That tired, exhausted feeling, lack of appetite, aches and pains, flabby flesh, skin troubles—all speak of a body weakness—a lack of the normal count of red-blood-cells.

Every normal person's blood should contain about 5,000,000 red corpuscles to the cubic millimeter—those vitalizing, tiny red-cells which give blood its color and are carriers of nourishment to every part of the body. It is dangerous to let the red blood count remain below normal.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people. It helps Nature increase the red-blood-cells. It promotes healthy body building. It is time-tested and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It is easily assimilated. Pleasant to take. It is on sale at all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. S.S.S. Co.

Marilyn Miller in Broadway Song Hits Is Feature of Vallee Program

Eventide Music Selected for Offerings of Seiberling Singers

DAINTY Marilyn Miller, one of America's musical comedy stars, will present two song hits from her recent Broadway successes in "Look for the Silver Lining" from "Sally," and "Who" from "Stepping," in her appearance as guest artist with Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees on the Fleischmann "Sunshine Hour" at 8 o'clock Thursday night over the WEAF network.

Born into the theatrical family Marilyn Miller spent her first few years on the stage dodging school authorities who tried to prevent her appearance. Beginning as a member of the "Five Columbias," she toured Europe, finally appearing in an English revue, where she was discovered by Lee Shubert and brought to America. Here she appeared in numerous productions, finally achieving stardom under the Ziegfeld banner. She made her first excursion recently into the "talkies" when she made "Sally" into a First National-Vitaphone picture.

Sword of Power Fails To Keep de Rivera in Office

Former Dictator of Spain Relieved of Post When Attempt To Use Force To Settle Problems Brings Dissension

BY J. C. OESTREICHER

The truth of this age-old maxim was amply demonstrated within the few days by the sudden fall from power of General Primo de Rivera, whose resignation from the leadership of Spain brings to an end the "mailed fist" regime he established a brilliant military coup d'etat years ago.

Although the somewhat fantastic dictatorial of Primo de Rivera held high office naturally weakened, numerically at least, the phalanx of dictatorial power which rules in various parts of the world, it does not symbolize any general swing of popular opinion in opposition to this form of government. With one or two exceptions, the remainder of the world's dictators are stronger today than they ever were before.

As a matter of actual fact, even in Spain the popular dissension which enforced Primo's resignation was not directed against the dictatorship as such, but against the dictator. Were there another "strong man" in Spain today to take over where Primo de Rivera left off, the military dictatorship in all probabilities would continue. Lacking a vigorous leader, return to a constitutional form of government will probably be the ultimate result.

Primo de Rivera is the first of the dictators to fall, and in many respects it is surprising he did not go before. The military, whose unanimous support cabled him to be catapulted to autocratic power in 1923, long ago became divided against him, and the royal favor of King Alfonso was lost to him some time ago.

Lacked Confidence

Primo himself admitted he could not last long, and nothing more quickly destroys the confidence of a people in their leader than a weakening of the leader's confidence in himself. The absolute assurance with which the majority of the other dictators in the world rule with an iron hand indicates strongly that there is little chance of their being forced from the saddle, in the near future at least.

True enough, the year 1930 may see two changes in the roster of dictatorships. Josef Stalin, the "iron man" of Soviet Russia may possibly be ousted from power, but it is certain he will be replaced by another man capable of carrying out the same dictatorial policies which characterize the present rule from the Kremlin. Thus the dictator may be replaced, but the dictatorship will not.

The other unstable dictator is Juan Vicente Gomez, the "Mussolini" of Venezuela, but it is not any lessening of political power which presages the end of his regime. Gomez' removal appears imminent but at the hands of sickness and the ravages of time. He is reported to be critically ill and his advanced years hold out little promise for recovery. But so completely has he wiped out political opposition during his vigorous lifetime that even if death claims him, Gomez, or the spirit of Gomez, promises to be the power behind the Venezuelan government for many years to come.

Mussolini Stronger

So far as Mussolini is concerned, little need be said. Il Duce is stronger in his seat at the Chigi palace than ever before; seemingly nothing can remove this rock-ribbed Fascist leader from supreme power in the Italian government. It is unlikely that the downfall of Primo de Rivera caused even the slightest ripple of apprehension in Fascist ranks.

Primo de Rivera emerges unfavorably in comparison with any of the dictators mentioned above. Seizing supreme power over what is probably the most inflammatory group of people in the world, Primo staked his faith on the army which raised him to authority. When the first rumblings of discontent were heard in the ranks of the military, Primo tried to stamp them out by force instead of moral persuasion. He swung the sword against the sword, and proved too weak.

It seems possible that Primo might have saved his regime had he chosen to ignore to a greater extent the somewhat pusillanimous rebellions by the artillery corps in Spain. Had he permitted these fireworks to spend their force without permitting the entire nation to be aroused over them, or if he had realized that no military dictatorship can survive without granting the people at least a semblance of governmental voice, he might not be without a job today.

In writing Primo's political obsequies, it is difficult not to think of that bearded ruler, now chopping wood at a castle in Holland, who tried to be a dictator when neither his own people nor the world were ready for it. Kaiser Wilhelm has just celebrated his 71st birthday. Primo de Rivera and the Hohenzollern may possibly find something in common. Both tried something by methods which perhaps were fundamentally unsound, and are now reaping the fruits of their labors.

47 Years' Practice Taught Dr. Caldwell

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people. He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1885 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripes. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by drugstores. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any drugstore in the world.

GIVE PROGRAM

Seventh Grade Pupils Provide Entertainment at State st. School

Pupils of the seventh grade at the State Street school gave a program following the business meeting of the State Street Community club Tuesday night at the school building. The program was as follows:

Karl Bechtle, piano solo, "Narcissus;" nine girls and boys, "Sailing," "My Spanish Guitar" and "The Skating Waltz;" 13 girls and boys in dramatization of a class meeting of the "Safety Council;" Mary Monahan, "Life of Washington;" Karl Bechtle, "Tribute to Lincoln;" recitation, "The American's Creed," followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag; song, "Star Spangled Banner;" Barbara Alice Adams, piano solo, "Off to the Mountains."

DISTURBED SLEEP

Is One Of Nature's Warnings Of Danger Ahead

Mrs. Annie L. Denson, 214 Wykes St., Aliquippa, Pa., says, "For 9 years I suffered agony with my bladder. Was told the only hope for a cure was an operation. Dreaded to see night come as I was disturbed many nights every 15 minutes. After taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) a few days I had much relief. I am now almost cured. Sleep all night without being disturbed. I have gained 18 pounds. I am always glad to tell or write my full experience." It acts on bladder as epsom salts do on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores, Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Waldorf Pharmacy.—Adv.

Evangelistic Meetings Drawing Large Crowds

The Union Evangelistic convention now in progress at the Oakland Evangelical church is drawing a fine attendance each night. There were nine ministers present Tuesday night for the first meeting, and there were six responses to the altar call last night.

The Rev. Earl Ross, of Detroit, will preach tonight and Friday at 2 and 7:30 p. m. Last night he preached on "The Coolest Heart."

"Christ's message to the church at Ephesus," said the preacher, "a message which has its bearing upon the life of every church in every age, is threefold. It consists of an acknowledgment, an accusation and an admonition. The externals of religion are all conceded to this congregation, but they have grown cold at the heart.

"They have retained the forms; they have lost the fire. Go back where you began to read and beseech God by His Spirit to kindle the fire anew."

Waldo Freshman Class Conducts Chapel Service

The freshman class of the Waldo high school conducted the chapel services Tuesday morning. Walter Binder, class president, was in charge. Chapel was opened with "America," led by Florence Klingel. Florence Fidler read the scripture lesson and gave the prayer. A program was given, as follows:

Maxine Shults and Ruth Hoffman, piano duet; Lena Denzer, eulogy of Lincoln; Robert Augenstein, "What Does America Mean to Me?" music by the class; Violet Frey, "O Captain My Captain," Katheryn and Louise Tron, vocal duet; Harold Curren, "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address;" "The Star Spangled Banner," sung by the school.

HENNEY & COOPER

TREASURER INSTALLED

Mrs. Ruth Knight was installed as treasurer of the Marion Projected Home Circle Unit at a meeting last night in Junior Order hall. Mrs. S. A. Hollenbaugh acted as installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Mary Christ. A letter was read from the national president, S. H. Hadley, of Sharon, Pa. A covered dish supper was served at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be held March 5. Next Wednesday night there will be a benefit card party, starting at 8:15 o'clock. Refreshments will be served.

Waldo P. T. A. Cast To Appear in Play

The Waldo Parent-Teachers association will present "The Path Across the Hill," by Lillian Mortimer, at 8 o'clock next Thursday night in the Waldo school auditorium. It is a comedy-drama in three acts. The following patrons of the P. T. A. are members of the cast:

Mrs. Harry Coleman, Mrs. Roscoe Strese, Misses Edna Beck, Isabelle Smith and Hope Klingel; Harry Kadlec, Edson Baker, Paul Meyer, Robert Denzer, and Ralph Augenstein. Mrs. Frank Hemlich is directing the play.

Discussion Held at Waldo P. T. A. Meet

"What Should the School Give to the Student?" was the topic under discussion at the February meeting of the Waldo Parent-Teacher association, Tuesday night in the Waldo school building. S. Wallace Calhoun, science instructor, was discussion leader in the forum period.

Mrs. Alfred Donathen, president of the organization, presided. The meeting opened with community singing, followed by a business session. Students of the seventh and eighth grades presented a play under the direction of Jesse M. Clark, instructor.

A curved sheet of cardboard is used instead of a sound box to reproduce the tones of a Swedish instrument's phonograph.
